DuPont's deep well will endanger water supply, says attorney

By DAVID PIERSON
(See related story)

Long Beach attorney Robert Homes said Saturday that the Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Commission (MAWPCC) did not consider alternative means of waste disposal when it approved a DuPont permit allowing the discharge of toxic wastes into a deep well.

Home went on to say that the DuPont Company is presently using "less dangerous" methods of waste disposal at its other titanium dioxide plants, and that the MAWPCC was negligent when it did not investigate these other means of disposal as possible alternatives.

The Long Beach attorney made his charges after studying the MAWPCC's record on the DuPont case on behalf of the environmentalist group, Save the Bay, Inc. Homes is presently representing Save the Bay in a Harrison County chancery court suit which alleges that the MAWPCC prejudged the DuPont permit in favor of the chemicals corporation. The permit was approved by a unanimous vote January 14.

The permit allows DuPont to construct a multi-million dollar titanium dioxide plant north of the Bay of St. Louis and to discharge its neutral salts into the Bay. The toxic wastes, such as arsenic, cyanide, mercury, and large quantities of iron chloride, will be injected into a deep well system about 10,000 feet underground. A layer of Selma rock at the 8,000-foot level is being counted on to hold the toxic wastes from rising.

The Save the Bay attorney contends, however, that the deep well injection system presents a danger to the artesian drinking water supply of the Gulf Coast because the quality of the Selma rock cannot be determined.

"This is a risky business," he said. "No one knows what's underground. What we're talking about here is the drinking water supply of the entire Gulf Coast. Even the EPA has said that the present technology is not sophisticated enough to determine if there are any fault underground."

"Because of this," said Homes, "the EPA does not look favorably on deep well injection methods and require that it can be used only 'after all alternative measures have been explored and found less satisfactory in terms of environmental protection.'"

The EPA in January made a revision in the MAWPCC permit which stipulated that DuPont would have to change over from the deep well system to a waste treatment facility within [illegible] months after the EPA develops its new guidelines on titanium dioxide plants.

Homes said that DuPont should be required to use one of the methods of waste disposal that it is now using at its other titanium dioxide plants. "This is a new plant DuPont is planning to build," said Homes. "Why don't they start in with a new waste disposal system instead of having to change over after a few years. Once you put that poison underground by deep well, it stays there. It's too late. We've already taken the risk."

Homes also said there is evidence in the MAWPCC record which links deep wells to earthquakes. He said that the waste material many times acts as a lubricant between the layers of rocks causing them to move. He then cited from the Commission's record separate instances in Texas and Utah that supported this contention. In still another example, he said that the U. S. Army Chemical Corps Rocky Mountain Arsenal near Denver started using a deep well disposal system in February, 1962, and the following month the Denver area experienced its first earthquake since 1882.

"All we can do," said Homes, "is point out areas that cried out for investigation, matters that the commission was aware of and being aware of these things, they simply didn't investigate. Had they investigated, for example, they would have had to deal with the dangers of earthquakes."

Homes also said the state commission's record included correspondence between the DuPont Company and the Georgia Environmental Protection Division (that state's version of the AWPCC). According to that correspondence, Georgia refused DuPont's plans for a deep well injection system on the grounds that there were more suitable methods of waste disposal.

Among the alternative methods of waste disposal of toxic chemicals, said Homes, are two methods which Homes says are being used at other titanium dioxide plants.

The first of these, said Homes, is DuPont's Edge Moor plant in Delaware where the toxic wastes are disposed of by means of acid neutralization. The waste is collected in lagoons, neutralized to ferric chloride, and then sold to sewage plants. According to the MAWPCC's records, the Delaware plant will be able to sell all its ferric choloride by 1981.

"The reason that DuPont doesn't want to use this method down here," said Homes, "is that even with the sale of ferric chloride, the acid neutralization method is more expensive than the deep well system where you just pump it underground."

Another method of waste disposal, [illegible]

[illegible] approved the DuPont permit.

Among these areas, he said, was the MAWPCC's public notice [illegible] its December [illegible] public hearing in a Jackson newspaper [illegible] circulation of 1,500 in Hancock and Harrison Counties. Homes said that the notice should have been published in the newspapers on the Coast so that the public hearing would be given the widest publicity."

Homes also claims the timing of the hearing between Christmas and New Year's made it inconvenient, or impossible for many of Save the Bay's experts to attend.

Georgia refused DuPont's deep well

By DAVID PIERSON

The DuPont Company, according to Save the Bay attorney Robert Homes, did not locate their multi-million dollar titanium dioxide plant in Georgia because the state would not allow them to discharge their toxic wastes into a deep well system but suggested instead that the chemicals corporation barge its wastes to an approved dumping zone in the ocean.

The Save the Bay attorney said that DuPont officials agreed that ocean barging was an acceptable means of waste disposal at the proposed Brunswick plant, but that the company officials refused to consider it "because there was not enough time" to get the permit and get the plant operational by 1977.

Homes, who is representing Save the Bay in a court suit that charges the Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Commission (MAWPCC) with negligence when it approved the DuPont permit, claims that the deep well system will endanger the Gulf Coast's drinking water supply. According to the MAWPCC permit, DuPont would be allowed to pump arsenic, cyanide, mercury, and large quantities of iron chlorides 10,000 feet underground.

Having recently received the entire MAWPCC record on the DuPont permit, Homes is presently preparing his legal brief for the Harrison County chancery court suit.

The Georgia state commission, said Homes, was going by the EPA's guidelines when it disapproved of a deep well injection system and suggested instead other methods of disposing of the waste. The MAWPCC, however, said Homes, did not investigate the alternatives to deep wells.

Reported phase-out of Jackson Landing unconfirmed

Charles Hill, president of Jackson Landing Shipyards at Port Bienville Industrial Park, was unavailable for comment Wednesday on a report that the shipyard was going out of business.

It was revealed by workers at the shipyard Monday that as many as 150 employees had been laid off indefinitely because of financial troubles there.

A lien suit has been filed against the company in the Hancock County Circuit court this week. The suit, filed by Orleans Materials and Equipment Co., Inc. claims that Jackson Landing defaulted on payment for materials for two barges in the amount of $7,901.32. The suit is scheduled for hearing in the October circuit court session.

Two weeks ago a report that Jackson Landing could not meet is payroll was denied by company officials who said that late payroll checks were the result of a computer error. The Echo has learned that the Department of Labor has pressured the company into raising salaries to equal those paid at Ingalls and other shipyards.

The report of the layoffs has been thus far unconfirmed by company officials and officials of the Port and Harbor Commission. Both Charles Hill and Jake Jacobs of Jackson Landing, their attorney Michael Haas and Port and Harbor director Wilson Webre were unavailable for comment on the matter.

Blaze destroys Springwood Park home

A three hour long blaze completely destroyed the home of Neil C. Sand in Springwood Park subdivision near Pearlington Thursday night.

Four fire-fighting units from Waveland, Bayside Park, Clermont Harbor and Diamondhead answered the call which came in about 9 p.m. Thursday.

Sand, his wife and their two children were in New Orleans at the time the blaze occured. Mrs. Isabelle Saint Amant and Mrs. Loretta Breaux, neighbors in Springwood Park, spotted the fire and made the call to the Bayside Fire Department.

Ed Friloux, Diamondhead fire chief, reported after a preliminary investigation that the cause of the fire could have been electrical. Ken Whitehall, Bayside fire chief, directed the fire-fighting operations at the scene. No injuries were reported in the blaze, but the home, valued at $24,000 was totally destroyed.

"My neighbors were responsible for saving some of the appliances from the house," Sand said. "They pulled out the refrigerator and the television and some other things before the fire caused the roof to collapse."

According to the preliminary report, the fire began in the garage where it spread to the roof of the house.

Sand said that the planned to make necessary repairs to the garage immediately to use as a shelter for his family until the home could be rebuilt. He said that donations of spare plywood would be helpful in making the repairs.

A trust fund for the Sand family has been set up at Hancock Bank in Bay St. Louis. Anyone wishing to make a donation should mail or take it to the bank in care of the Neil C. Sand Trust Fund.

Clothes are also needed for the family. Sand wears size 38 waist - 31 length pants and size 15½ shirt. His wife wears size 10 dress and size 6½ shoes. The children's sizes are boy's size 4 and girl's size 6. Donations of clothes should be taken to Six Acres Restaurant on Highway 90, in Waveland.

Kellar declared victor

Johnson debates on legal action

First primary candidate for beat two supervisor, Charles Johnson of Waveland, has not decided on whether to take legal action on the recount last Thursday by the county Democratic Executive Committee which declared incumbent board president, A. A. "Dolph" Kellar the first primary victor.

According to the unofficial results Aug. 5, Kellar was faced with a runoff against Johnson. With 808 votes Kellar lacked one vote of a first primary victory following the first count.

In Thursday's recount, however, Kellar was given 809 votes to Johnson's 618, giving him the first primary victory. A third opponent, Clinton Ladner, tallied 190 votes in the contest.

Two votes cast for Johnson were disallowed in the recount. The correction of other simple mathematical errors caused the original count of 808 to 619 to shift one vote in Kellar's favor, 809 to 618.

"I objected to the committee about the disallowed votes as soon as the recount was completed," Johnson said, "but they would not reconsider. We are now going ahead with whatever legal process is necessary in this case."

Circuit clerk Henry Otis explained that the two ballots in question were disallowed by the committee because they were "marked" ballots, meaning that the markings in the supervisor beat two race were distinguished from other markings, in this case by a double x.

Other official first primary victors according to the figures released by the Democratic Executive Committee Thursday are: Albert Necaise, District Attorney; Martin Smith, State Senator; John Rutherford, Chancery Clerk; Henry Otis, Circuit Clerk; George Heitzmann, Tax Assessor; James Travirca, supervisor beat five; Lee Buckley Klein, justice of the peace beat one; Phillip W. Malley, constable beat three; and William Carbonette, constable beat five.

Candidates on the ballot for the second Democratic primary Aug. 26 are: for state representative, J. P. Compretta and Walter James Phillips; for sheriff, Earl "Buck" Ladner and Sylvan Ladner; for superintendent of education, Terrell Randolph and Billy D. Sills; for supervisor beat one, Harlan G. Dean and Jerry Ladner; for supervisor beat three, Roger DALE Ladner and Oscar Peterson; for supervisor beat four, Hugo V. Haas and Sam [illegible]; for coroner, Carl Bandaret and Nina Green Garcia; for justice of the peace two, [illegible] "Hungry" Exnicious and Horation Frierson, Jr.; for justice of the peace beat three, Lloyd Anderson and [illegible] S. Ladner; for justice of the peace beat four, Joseph Dobson and Gerald R. Seumeanu; for justice of the peace beat five, Harry J. Farve and William M. Frisbie; for constable beat one, Peter Joseph Noto and Elvie Yarborough; for constable beat two Merlin J. Necaise and Terry [illegible]; and for constable beat four, A. C. Garcia and [illegible].

Lack of building code foils HUD application

By ANITA DINWIDDIE

The lack of a building code in Hancock County will cause an application to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for $[illegible] in federal money to be directed toward recreation and solid waste disposal instead of [illegible] rehabilitation, [illegible] at the Board of Supervisors meeting Monday.

[illegible] of Southern Engineering of Picayune reported to the board that a citizens committee appointed to make the application under the Community Development Act of 1974 recommended that $150,000 be requested for housing rehabilitation and $85,000 for recreation.

Under the proposed plan, Dunaway said the county could offer grants of as much as $[illegible] and loans up to $[illegible] to residents for housing rehabilitation. He said the committee recommended this plan because it was considered a direct aid plan and would have a better chance of being accepted by HUD. Recreation and waste disposal are considered indirect aid.

The plan was changed however, to make the application for solid waste disposal and recreation because a county building code is required for the rehabilitation plan. There would not be enough time, said board president A. A. Kellar, to institute a building code before the Sept. 30 application deadline.

Several of the supervisors have opposed the institution of building codes in the past because they felt it may injure local builders.

"I will support a building code, if I am sure that it is good for the people," said beat one supervisor Jerry Ladner, "and not for the politicians or the big contractors."

A public hearing will be held Sept. [illegible] on the proposal of the committee to apply for the federal money for solid waste disposal and recreation.

In other business the supervisors approved all items on the 1975-76 budget with the exception of the budget for the Stennis International Airport.

A figure of $36,000 for operation of the airport was submitted to the supervisors for approval, but was rejected on a motion by beat five supervisor James Travirca. Travirca said he moved to reject the budget because the airport's operating cost should have been included with the Port and Harbor budget. The airport budget was rejected by a unanimous vote.

Board president Kellar said, "We had to reject the figure because we just don't know where the money would have come from to pay it. The Port and Harbor is budgeted at five mills and that is all we can afford to give them. They will have to cut the Port and Harbor budget to pay for the operation of the airport."

In other Port and Harbor business the board approved a $17,000 drainage project to correct the flooding problem on the property of Mrs. Azaline Thian in Ansley. Bids for the project will be opened Sept. 4.

On a recommendation by the Democratic Executive Committee the board voted to move some of the polling places for the second Democratic primary Aug 26. In the North Bay precinct the polling place will be the Bay Senior High gym instead of North Bay Elementary; in the Standard precinct, the polling place will be Martin's garage or carport; and in the Lakeshore precinct, the polling place will be the Gulfview School gym.

An attempt to move the Arlington precinct in beat one was defeated, however, because supervisors said there was insufficient time to inform the public. The request was made by voters who said the present polling place at Feeney's Office in Waveland was too small.

In final business the board authorized Sheriff Sylvan Ladner to obtain three bids for repairs to the roof of the county jail, authorized $100 for the Waveland Civic Association's yearly fireworks display and made the first payment of $19,239.30 to George P. Hopkins of Gulfport, contractor for the city-county public library.

Hill named assistant superintendent for county

The Hancock County School Board has recently named Harlin E. Hill, former principal of Hancock North Central Elementary, as assistant superintendent of education for the county schools.

Hill will fill the vacancy left by the retirement several months ago of assistant superintendent E. E. Breland.

A graduate of Murray State University in Murray Kentucky, Hill holds a Bachelor of Science and Master's degree in education. He has also done advanced work at the University of Tennessee and the University of Southern Mississippi.

The new assistant superintendent has worked in nearly every phase of the education system. He served Haywood County, Tennessee, as a teacher for seven years and as an assistant principal at the high school for one year.

In Mississippi he was the elementary principal at Wool Market Elementary, Wool Market, Mississippi, for four years and principal of Pass Christian High School for two years.

Hill has been the principal of Hancock North Central Elementary for one year.

"I feel that all of the work that I have done in the school system is related," Hill said. "I won't be getting away from the children in this new capacity, and I feel that here I will be in a better position to help."

HARLIN E. HILL

Hill will perform a variety of duties as assistant superintendent. He is responsible to both the superintendent and the school board and is expected to assume the duties of the superintendent in his absence.

The assistant superintendent is responsible for applying for money under federal aid programs including money under the Impact Law and titles one through six of the Elementary and Secondary Education Administration.

Presently Hill said he is occupied with organizing a detailed report of the school system to submit to the Navy Oceanographic Office which will soon transfer about 1200 employees to the National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County.

His other duties include direction of curriculum and methods of instruction, supervising the hiring of substitute teacher and handling transportation for the school district, determining textbook and audio-visual needs, assisting the principals in in-service training, conducting research, maintaining the school records, and handling purchasing requirements.

"To me the job involves just doing whatever I can to help the schools," Hill said. "I'm happy to have this opportunity to serve the school system in this way."

Balch joins Gulf Regional Planning

Retiring manager of the National Space Technology Laboratories, Jackson Balch, will undertake duties as a special consultant to the Gulf Coast Regional Planning Commission, announced Ned Boudreaux, executive director, Monday.

Boudreaux said as a special consultant, Balch will reinforce the Commission staff concentrating in areas of liaison with county supervisors, city officials and local planning groups.

"He will be working with various federal agencies that fund programs of interest to the Gulf Coast area," Boudreaux said. "He will also provide increased liaison with appropriate state officials in Jackson and work with the Commission staff on the various planning programs now under way and others contemplated."

Boudreaux noted that Balch's experience with NASA in working with agencies of the states of Mississippi and Louisiana as well as with many federal agencies will help strengthen the Gulf Regional Planning Commission's efforts in both short and long range planning.

New ambulance service causes stir on Council

By ANITA DINWIDDIE

The establishment of a new ambulance service in the county, the Hancock County Ambulance Service, has caused some concern among local members of the Gulf Coast Emergency Medical Services Council.

Don McIntyre, representative of Hancock County on the council, appeared before the board of supervisors Monday about the new service run by Jimmy Duke of Gulfport which has established offices on Nicholson Ave. in Waveland.

McIntyre told the board that the company had not appeared before the council to present its credentials as an ambulance service.

Last week the board had passed a resolution saying it did not object to the operation of the Hancock Ambulance service in the county when Duke appeared before them complaining of interference by local authorities in its operation. The board said it had passed the resolution in the spirit of free enterprise and had no knowledge of the capabilities of the service.

"We are not trying to stop anybody from operating an ambulance service in the county," McIntyre said, "but we are concerned that they have not come before the council. There are very specific requirements that a service must meet in order to operate."

At present Hancock County is included in an ambulance district which the council is responsible for overseeing. Mobile Medic Ambulance Service has been the only ambulance service approved by the council to operate in the district.

McIntyre also appeared along with Doug Burgin, president of Mobile Medic and Dr. A. K. Martinolich, Waveland representative on the council, before the Waveland Board of Aldermen Thursday to discuss the establishment of the new service.

Martinolich expressed surprise that any other company would try to operate a competitive ambulance service in the county citing that Mobile Medic has lost money in Hancock County, a loss which is offset by its operation in West Harrison.

"I had no idea that there would be anyone who would try to compete with Mobile Medic on a losing proposition," Martinolich said. "It isn't that we are trying to keeping them from doing business here, it is just that you almost have to have a monopoly of this kind of service, just like with utilities, in order to make it work. The most they could succeed in doing is to hurt Mobile Medic. I don't see how they could make a profit in Hancock County."

Burgin pointed out that even though Hancock residents give greater percentage wise support than Harrison, Mobile Medic loses $2000 to $3000 on its operation here.

"Don't get me wrong on this," he said. "We are happy to operate in Hancock County, but we know that the most we can expect to do is to minimize our losses. We don't ever expect to make a profit."

To that end Burgin announced that he is extending the annual subscription drive in Hancock County until Aug. 15.

Martinolich said that the only alternative to the membership type service operated by Mobile Medic is to fund an ambulance service through municipal and county taxes as the East Harrison ambulance district does.

"I personally think that our system is better," Martinolich said, "and it will work as long as we can minimize our losses in the less populated areas."

Pilet, representing the Hancock County bicentennial committee, presents a painting to the Hancock supervisors from the Bell Telephone Co. commemorating the nation's bicentennial and the 100th anniversary of Bell Telephone. The painting will be the cover design for next year's phone book. From left to right are James Travirca, Sam Favre, Mrs. Nunez Pilet, Bully Zengarling, A. A. Kellar, John Rutherford, Jerry Ladner and Oscar Peterson.

County schools set registration

K. G. McCarty, Superintendent of the Hancock County School District, announced that registration of all students entering the first grade for the first time at the Gulfview, Charles B. Murphy and Hancock North Central Elementary Schools will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday, Aug. 18.

McCarty noted that parents or guardians must accompany the students to the schools for registration. All students being presented for enrollment must have an official certified birth certificate bearing a state file number. State law requires that all students enrolling in the first grade must be six years of age on or before January 1, 1976.

According to McCarty, school board policies require that all first graders must have the following immunization: Polio, Diptheria, Tetanus, Whooping Cough, a complete physical examination, Measles, Rubella, and a Tuberculosis Test.

Registration for all other students will be held at each individual school from 8 a.m. to noon Aug. 22. Buses will operate on the same schedule as last year for this registration.

The first day for the 1975-76 school term will be Monday, Aug. 25. McCarty indicated that the regular class schedule will be observed on that day. All district cafeterias will be operating and the school buses will operate on the same schedule as last year.

Sheriff investigates robbery

Approximately $350 of liquor plus about $50 from two coin-operated washing machines was stolen early Monday morning in a break-in of the J. C. Peck Mauffray Package Store in Kiln.

Deputy sheriff James Ladner said the burglars apparently entered the store by removing an air-conditioning unit from a rear window. Ladner and officer Fairley Necaise are investigating the theft.

Chamber delegation attends meeting for Navy workers

A three member delegation from the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce returned Tuesday from a two day meeting with employees of the Navy Oceanographic Office whose jobs have been transferred to the National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County.

Max Berns, chamber manager, Perry Gibson, president and Mrs. Nell Frisbie, director, joined other delegates from coast communities from Slidell to Biloxi and Poplarville and Picayune at the present Navy office in Suitland, Maryland.

Bernes said the meeting consisted of four sessions with the employees and their families on Monday and Tuesday. He said the sessions were devoted to general information about the area, education facilities and housing in the various communities. The meeting was organized by the individual communities affected by the move and funded by organizations and individuals in the communities.

Gibson said that approximately 600 people were contacted through the sessions which included color slide presentations about the housing, churches, schools, community services, recreation and industrial development in the area.

"We found the group to be very responsive," Berns said. "They had been getting some erroneous information about the lifestyle in Mississippi, and we feel that we might have answered a lot of their questions with this trip."

Berns said that the delegation was received by Secretary of the Navy E. William Middendorf and oceanographer, Rear Admiral Edward Snyder. They were assisted in the presentation by special assistant to the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, John Stephens.

Berns praised the efforts of the various delegations to work together to make the sessions with the Navy employees successful.

"It was an excellent demonstration of area cooperation," he said. "Even though the trip was almost a spur of the moment idea, all of the delegations worked together to make a coordinated, rapid and factual presentation."

Berns said that the chamber had arranged for a master file to be set up in all of the communities with a code system to answer future inquiries by the Navy employees.

"This trip has been a good example of the value of personal contact," the chamber manager said. "We met the people and attempted in a personal way to stress the delightful way of life that we have here on the Mississippi Coast."

Gibson commented that the trip had also been enlightening for the local residents.

"I think we learned a lot about what the people were thinking about," he said, "We learned that they have the same concerns as we do about the education and housing in the community. I think it was a splendid opportunity to be able to give this information directly to the people who will be involved in the move."

Gibson also said that Mrs. Frisbie, who represented the housing industry at the meeting, would hold a meeting with all local realtors to discuss the needs of the Navy employees.

Ambulance on call hits car broadside

Minor injuries were sustained by two New Orleans women and a five-week-old baby when their 1973 Buick was struck broadside at 2:45 a.m. Tuesday by an ambulance operated by Hancock County Ambulance Service at the intersection of Highways 90 and 603.

Waveland police chief Donald Dorn said the ambulance driver Jesse L. Ladner of Pass Christian was on an emergency call when he went through a red light on Highway 90 and struck the vehicle driven by Mrs. Mary Lynn Moore of New Orleans.

Mrs. Moore, her five week old baby and a third passenger Mrs. Virginia Frazier Raines, also of New Orleans, were treated for minor injuries and lacerations at Hancock General Hospital and released.

Waveland police issued a ticket for failing to yield, disobeying a traffic signal and causing an accident to Ladner. A second passenger of the ambulance, Dwayne Hansel of Gulfport was given a citation for public drunkenness.

The Hancock County Ambulance Service is owned by Jimmy Duke of Gulfport. It is not connected to Mobile Medic Ambulance Service.

Pooch of the Week

Daisy-Mae, a 1½-year old female well-mixed black collie and shepherd was taken to the Waveland Animal Shelter on Spruce Street when her owners moved to smaller quarters. Daisy-May likes children and would also like to have a home. The animal shelter also has available some mixed-breed seven-week-old puppies and a four-month-old male gray mixed shepherd. Anyone interested in adopting Daisy May or any others at the Waveland Shelter can call 467-3739, 467-9236, or 467-7173 for further information.

FmHA announces yearly totals

Nearly 30,000 Mississippi families have directly benefited from the programs administered by the Farmers Home Administration during its fiscal year ending June 30.

FmHA, the major credit agency for rural development, had its biggest loan making year ever in obligating $228 million in loan and grant funds for individual and community projects in this State.

J. F. Barbour, III, Mississippi State Director for the 'Federal' agency, stated that FmHA' activities for the past year were 50 percent above the previous high of $143 million for 1973.

In Hancock County, $697,730 were put into the local economy by Hancock County office which is headed by Kenneth W. Lee, County Supervisor.

Federal mismanagement

The Mississippi Economic Council

Federal government, in essence, is a large business — and, too often a poorly managed one, at that.

The federal budget this year calls for expenditures in excess of $300 billion. That's an astounding figure because the nation's budget didn't exceed $100 billion until less than 15 years ago.

Admittedly, our nation's economy has grown also. But the government has expanded phenomenally. Federal expenditures now account for more than one third of our gross national product. If that trend continues, it will not be long before the federal budget surpasses private enterprise as the main provider for the nation's people.

An even more shocking statistic is the federal debt. Predictions are that the deficit for this year will be at least $70 billion. Some predictions go as high as $100 billion.

Whatever happened to fiscal integrity? Why can't government operate within its financial limits? Imagine a business trying to operate with a 25 percent deficit. The business would soon be declaring bankruptcy.

This newspaper urges passage of the Fiscal Integrity Act, which has been introduced in Congress. If passed, the bill would prohibit the federal government from spending more than its estimated receipts for that year.

We've seen where politicians' promises of pie in the sky have placed cities such as New York. The nation can learn a lesson from the cities — "You can't give away money you spent 20 years ago."

Washington should take heed. If the politicians do not listen to what the people are saying and make appropriate changes, the proverbial chickens are certain to come home to roost.

Colling's Corner

By E.S. Colling

We must have been living right, because last week we finally succeeded in tracking down a remarkable book which has intrigued us for several years. The title of this book is "The Lost Panoramas of the Mississippi," and its author was John Francis McDermott, a New Englander. During the 1840s five of the remarkable panoramas were painted by different artists, the smallest measuring 440 yards in length by four yards in height. The largest was 1200 yards in length.

Night after night, these immense "newsreels," as they were called, were unrolled on brightly lit screens and exhibited to people in Mississippi Valley cities and small towns, gradually working their way eastward to Chicago and New York, and eventually booked for a long run in London. Every phase of American life was depicted on these immense canvasses together with views of interesting scenic points and historic landmarks, so that when a "newsreel" of a section of the Mississippi (or the Ohio, or the Missouri was shown in the town hall of some little village it was of immense educational value.

There were no haphazard collections of views but followed a "program pattern" very much like a filmed newsreel would do today. In no time at all, newsreels of many subjects were being made and exhibited all through the eastern States. One depicted a whaling voyage, another artist produced his "moving mirror of the Overland Trail" from two hundred watercolor sketches made "from nature on the spot," and another offered his "amusement for the millions," a diorama of the burning of Moscow, supplemented by "experiments in Magic and Ventriloquism."

All through his youthful years, John Banvard had dreamed of painting "the biggest picture in the world" and when, after many adventures and hardships, he at last succeeded in doing this and his immense panorama of the Mississippi was being shown to large audiences throughout the east and middlewest, and spurred by amazing criticisms by European art critics, nothing would suffice but a mammoth exhibition of his panorama in London. So he packed up his "three mile picture," hired the biggest available hall in the British capital, and set out to astonish the natives.

But nobody came to see the picture! Banvard then tried American showmanship: he gave tickets away to every British boatman he could find. The response was terrific and within a week people were fighting for seats. Month after month the American newsreel packed the hall. A command performance at Windsor was the climax!

You might say that this has been just another American success story. But there is more to come! Don't miss the climax of this remarkable saga of "the biggest picture in the world."

Bicentennial News

By JOE PILET

In the year 1776 Samuel Johnson with his exceptional command of the English language wrote a prayer asking God to "Illuminate my thoughts with knowledge, and inflame my heart with holy desires. Grant me to resolve well, and to keep my resolutions."

In the year 1876 Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone. Surely Bell's thoughts were illuminated with knowledge, his heart inflamed with desire, he resolved and he kept that resolution by giving to the world an instrument of rapid communication.

Within a very short time telephone subscribers will receive telephone directories. A new directory is always interesting. It's informative. Not only are we able to conveniently locate the person with whom we wish to speak, but through it we can "read the pulse" of our community. New listings mean added growth. Prosperity. Yellow pages tell the story of businesses and services within our area. Obsolete directories usually find their way to the community paper sales where they are destined to be reprocessed for some other useful life.

Your new telephone directory has a cover that should not be discarded. This is a BICENTENNIAL COVER and completely tells the one hundred year old story beginning with the invention of the telephone showing the "butterstamp" model in use in 1876 and following through with the use of every model phone developed by the Bell System during these centennial years!

Some thirty-two characters are depicted using these telephones — personalities gleaned from American history and American mythology.

Stanley Meltzoff, an artist who lives in New Jersey, created this Bicentennial cover for the Bell System. His thoughts, too, were illuminated; his heart inflamed and his resolution accomplished. Characters depicted are a true cross-section of Americana from the Early American (Indian), the statesmen, who carved our nation, [illegible] to our cultural arts, our sports and community life.

Enjoy your Bicentennial telephone cover. Protect it, and save it for posterity. It is surely destined to be a "collector item." Of the 32 characters depicted only four are now living, they include Shirley Temple, Marian Anderson, Norman Rockwell and the esteemed creator of the cover, Stanley Meltzoff.

Pause, too, to honor the memory of Alexander Graham Bell, American scientist, educator and inventor, who was interred in 1922. The stone at his grave in Beinn Breagh, near Nova Scotia reads: "Born in Edinburgh...died a citizen of U.S.A." Only Alexander Graham Bell is not dead. He lives today through his far-reaching service to humanity.

"Come one! Come all! See the two-headed donkey!"

County Agent's Notes

TROUBLESHOOTING SOYBEANS

Around this time of year, we get a lot of questions about soybeans not looking just right. Some of the common symptoms that may be expected from now until harvest are:

1. Bright yellow spots on upper surfaces of leaves with gray mold lower leaf surface. This is a downy mildew. It is common in late season when high temperatures and high moisture occur. It causes no yield reduction.

2. Areas with a field where plants appear stunted with few pods; often leaving crinkled, slightly darker leaves in cup. This indicates soil acidity — low pH.

3. Unthrifty plants, early death and stalk breakage, leaves yellowing or browning from margin. This is potash deficiency.

4. Lighter green than normal and failure to fill new middles. This is phosphorus deficiency.

5. Stunt plants, yellow leaves, some death of plants, pronounced symptoms in scattered areas of fields, root system abnormal. This indicates cyst nematodes.

6. Dying or dead plants with white mold on lower stem at soil surface. This is Southern blight.

7. Stalk breakage (lodging) two or three inches above soil. This indicates damage from three cornered alfalfa hopper.

DAIRY MANAGEMENT

Mastitis can take a big bite out of your dairy profits. For every case of mastitis you see, there may be as many as 40 more. The loss of milk not produced because of mastitis can easily be $70 per cow a year.

To help reduce this tremendous loss, consider these steps:

Wash the udder with a warm sanitizing solution and dry with a single service paper towel.

Remove two or three streams of foremilk from each quarter and examine for abnormalities.

Attach teat cups about one minute after starting udder preparation or when tests are full of milk. Adjust the teat cup as necessary during milking to insure quarters milking out properly.

Start machine stripping when milk flow slows (usually three to four minutes). Machine strip quickly and do not overmilk.

Dip the teat cups in teat dip proved to be effective and safe immediately after removing them.

Have the entire milking system checked twice a year by a qualified service man.

BRUCELLOSIS

It is up to our cattlemen and dairymen to stamp out brucellosis in the state. To do this, it is going to be necessary that 100 percent of the replacement heifer calves be vaccinated against this disease for the next five or more years.

Brucellosis, also known as "bang's disease," is a serious economic problem. It is costly in aborted calves, non-breeder cows and the loss of brood cows that are reactors and have to be sold for slaughter.

The disease can also be transmitted to man and is then known as undulant fever.

The state legislature appropriated funds so that the vaccination program can be carried out with no cost to the farmer.

Calves should be vaccinated as soon as possible after they reach three months of age. For help in scheduling your calves for vaccination, contact your practicing veterinarian, the state veterinarian's office or your county agent.

Veterans Information

It is fast approaching that time of the year when the yearly income questionnaire card (IQ) will be coming. The cards are number 21-8675 for a veteran with dependents and 21-8676 for a widow. This card must be completed and returned by Jan. 1st or payment on the Feb. 1st check will be stopped. The card and the return envelope comes with the November check. Be careful with the card and do not send it or tear it because it must be processed by machine. Almost all V.A. Pension Checks are cross-referenced with Social Security to determine that correct amounts are reported.

If possible bring your IQ Card, as soon after you receive it as you can, to your Hancock County Veterans Service Officer in the Court House and he will complete it for you. If you fill it out yourself here are some things not to do.

1. Do not count the amount you receive as pension from the V.A. as income.

2. Do not report the Social Security that comes on one check for a man and wife, as income of the veteran. Report the amount each person draws separately. If Medicare is being withheld add $6.70 to each check for the total monthly amount of your Social Security.

3. Do not use a check mark or ditto (") marks in any block. If the answer if none, either write none or use a (0) in the block. The IQ Card will be returned if this is not done and it could delay your check.

Medical expenses should be reported by the veteran or widow if they exceed five percent of the total income, unless you are receiving maximum amounts of pension or parents DIC. The Veteran Administration allows medical expenses for treatment of any disability, for any member of the claimant's family for whose well being he is responsible and for which he is not reimbursed, by any Health Insurance policy. Medical expenses include— health insurance premiums-hospital insurance premiums; medicare payments; prescription drugs [illegible] dental bills, doctor bills, hospital bills & optician bills. Reporting all these Medical Bills could possible raise your pension allowance for the past year and merit a retro-active payment check.

Those persons over 72 years of age, who do not receive the IQ Card should submit V.A. Form 21-8416a if they have unusual medical expenses and they believe it would benefit them. They are required by law to report any changes in the number of dependents, or a change in income, as a change in either will govern the amount of pension to which they are entitled.

For questions on the IQ card or any other veteran benefits call Chester L. Curvey at 467-5404 or come to the Veterans Service Office in the Court House 2nd floor, rear.

The Veterans Service Office will be closed from July 24 through Aug. 1.

Q — I used the specially adapted housing grant when it was $12,500. This grant has now been raised to $25,000. Am I entitled to the difference on another house?

A — No. This is a one-time benefit for eligible veterans.

AMERICA'S HERITAGE

HIGHLIGHTS OF AMERICAN HISTORY

WASHINGTON AT VALLEY FORGE

While Washington and his men starved and froze in the winter of 1777-78 at Valley Forge, the British lived in comfort at Philadelphia, 20 miles away.

Valley Forge was originally chosen for strategic reasons, essentially as an army training center, and General Washington's plans during that winter were well-drawn. But negligence and mismanagement on the part of others, particularly in the commissary department and in the transport service, almost destroyed the Continental army during the encampment.

The abnormally cold and long winter exhausted Washington's army to a handful of poorly equipped, sick, hungry men. But 10 days after leaving Valley Forge, the revived Continental force met the British army withdrawing from Philadelphia and fought them on equal terms in Monmouth, N.J.

Morale and proper discipline were the primary factors that led to the impressive showing on the battlefield. The battle was the chance for revenge the Continentals had been waiting for while camped in the frozen fields of Valley Forge.

F.C. Yohn's painting entitled "Washington at Valley Forge" depicts a deeply concerned General Washington saluting some haggard-looking soldiers pulling and pushing a wood-laden wagon through deep mud and snow. This piece of art is part of a historical paintings collection owned by The Continental Insurance Companies.

Social Security News

Every month dozens of people in the Gulfport area change their addresses. Many of these people depend on friends or neighbors to receive and forward their mail. If a Social Security or Supplemental Security Income check is included in this mail the check may be delayed or lost. Charles E. Wofford, manager of the social security office has this advice: "If you plan to move and you expect a check, please notify the social security office." A phone call will be OK, Wofford said.

"The U.S. Postal Service can forward these checks for a limited time only," Wofford added. "It's far better that the mailing address be changed, this cuts down on the possibility of errors."

There are other changes which should be reported also. Some of them are starting back to work after retirement, recovery from a disabling condition, marriage or non school attendance for student beneficiaries and others. If beneficiaries have any question about their continuing eligibility they should get in touch with the social security office in Gulfport. They will receive helpful, factual information. The phone number is 1-896-1323.

Social security can make about $101 million available for vocational rehabilitation services for people getting monthly disability benefits in fiscal 1976, according to Charles E. Wofford, social security district manager in Gulfport. Fiscal 1976 starts on July 1, 1975.

"That's about $18 million more than was available in fiscal 1975," Wofford said. "It means more disabled people can get rehabilitation training to help them return to jobs."

Social security pays monthly benefits to eligible workers and their families when the worker is severely disabled and not expected to work for a year or more. In selected cases, social security helps pay for vocational rehabilitation services provided by State and local agencies.

In fiscal 1974, over 60,000 disabled people in the U.S. got vocational rehabilitation services that social security helped pay for. Over 13,000 were successfully rehabilitated.

The amount available for rehabilitation services each year is 1½ percent of the total amount of social security disability benefits paid during the previous year.

The Social Security Administration is an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The Gulfport social security office is at 02015 Pass Road. The phone number is 1-896-1323.

Health department offers funds for fluoridation projects

The Mississippi State Board of Health's Division of Public Health Dentistry has received an extension of a $50,000 grant from the Mississippi Regional Medical Program which will make funds available to publicly-owned water systems for the purchase and installation of fluoridation equipment, said director Dr. Aaron Trubman.

Under the terms of the grant, publicly-owned water supply systems will be eligible to receive up to one-half of the costs of installing a fluoridation system. No single grant may exceed $5,000.

Interested water supply systems may make application for the grants to the Division of Public Health Dentistry of the Mississippi State Board of Health. Communities already awarded grants are Hernando, Baldwyn, Madison, Batesville, Ruleville, Ripley, Pickens, Coldwater, Senatobia, Tunica and Gulfport.

Hancock school board approves teachers, accepts bids

The Hancock County School board approved three teachers for Hancock North Central and Gulfview schools in meetings on Monday and Wednesday mornings this week.

The board also approved five bus drivers for all three county schools and ten title one teachers aides for the coming academic year.

In other business the board accepted a bid from Standard Oil Corporation for gasoline for the school year. The bid of Blossman, Inc. was also accepted for the propane gas needed by the schools.

The board approved Mrs. Helen Mellier, title one reading teacher at Hancock North Central, to attend reading conferences at Mississippi State University in October, December and February.

The board also voted to change the admission prices to the football games to $1 for students and $2 for adults.

Political rally to be held by Prisoner Bible Crusade

The Prisoners Bible Crusade, Inc. is sponsoring a political rally set for Aug. 23 at the Chester C. Lee plantation home on the old Kiln road in the Leetown community near the Pearl River and Hancock County line, about ten miles east of Picayune.

The rally is scheduled for 11 a.m. and will begin with a dedication service of the home office building which serves as an office and distribution center for the Prisoners Bible Crusade, Inc.

Radio Stations WRJW (am) and WRPM (fm) will be on hand to broadcast the activities of the day, and will give an opportunity to all candidates who wish to speak on the air.

All candidates in the second primary for state offices as well as county and district offices from Pearl River, Hancock, Stone, and Harrison Counties are invited to be present for the occasion.

Lee, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Picayune-based Prisoners Bible Crusade, said, "There will be plenty of good fresh fried catfish, gumbo, hamburgers and other food available."

All proceeds from the sale of food and drinks will go into the fund of the Prisoners Bible Crusade for the exclusive purpose of purchasing and distributing Bibles and religious tracts to prisoners in penal and correctional institutions throughout the United States.

The Crusade has distributed more than 20,000 Bibles free to Prisoners since May, 1973.

Reflections of the past

This snappy vehicle of the 1920's has been decorated for the peach festival held each year at McNeil, Miss. The car was decorated by its owner Mrs. Lucille Innerarity of Slidell, the former Miss Lucille Stockstill of Picayune. Mrs. Innerarity says she remembers when peaches were big business all over this part of the country.

Mississippi makes bid for Canadian tourists

The gates opened Aug. 13 at the annual Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, Canada, and more than three million visitors will have an opportunity to discover Mississippi.

For the second year running the Mississippi Agricultural and Industrial Board's Travel and Tourism Department will be on hand to tell Canadians about the state's travel attractions.

"We're going to Toronto with showmanship and excitement," said Dot Lambert, travel department manager. "We'll be talking to visitors at our travel display, showing them our spectacular five-screen presentation on The Sights and Sounds of Mississippi, and entertaining them with Mississippi talent," she said.

In addition, Mrs. Lambert has arranged for a daily showing of "Fashions of Yesteryear from the Cotton Delta of Mississippi", in conjunction with the Exhibition's regular fashion shows.

For the Mississippi group the work really began Aug. 12 when they participated in a reception for travel writers and other media representatives hosted by the Southern Travel Directors Council in the Travel South USA Dome.

Dr. Robert L. Robinson, executive director of the A & I Board, stated that the purpose of attending the 20-day event is to lure more of the Canadians who vacation in the United States to Mississippi.

"We have the recreation attractions, the historical sites and the Gulf Coast. All we need to do is sell our product and this Exhibition is the best chance we have to reach this almost untapped market," Robinson asserted.

"We need to get a bigger share of the 19 percent of all Canadians who travel to the South, and a better percentage of the $166 million they spend according to United States Travel Service figures," he said.

Interest in the Canadian market was also expressed by Governor William Waller.

"It's obvious from the research figures that we have obtained from reliable sources including the Department of Commerce and our own University of Southern Mississippi studies that tourism, especially from the Canadian market, is potentially lucrative for Mississippi. I want to see some of those millions of dollars each year coming into Mississippi instead of going elsewhere. The other Southern states are going after them, and we're going to get our share for Mississippi," the Governor said.

Forester urges application for funds

Hancock County Forester Mike Williams says landowners not taking advantage of cost-sharing funds available for forestry improvement practices are missing "an excellent opportunity to turn a small investment into big returns."

The forester cites predictions of increasing timber demands over the next 30 years as a strong indication that timber growing is a sound investment.

"And with funds available to share the cost of tree planting and timber stand improvements," the forester said "the time couldn't be better than right now to invest in a timber crop."

Under two government funded forestry incentives programs, the Forest Incentive Program and the Forest Resource Development Program, landowners can receive cost-share allotments amounting to 75 percent of the actual cost per acre on forestry practices intended to increase timber production on underproductive lands.

"What this means," the forester explained, "is that for only a few dollars of his own, a landowner can convert idle acres or low-yields woodlands into a profitable timber investment. It's a small investment for big returns."

The funds are available in maximum per acre allotments, for tree planting, timber stand improvement work, preparation of planting sites for either natural or artificial regeneration, and firebreaks.

Williams said landowners should contact his office for further details and for making application for funds under either program. Application for the federal program may also be made at the local ASCS office.

Tom Stennis Wants Honest, Effective Use of Highway Money

It is the duty of the Highway Commissioner to squeeze out every mile of good highway there is in every tax dollar. As your Commissioner I will do that.

First, I will seek help and advice from the best people available, who are non-political and who have absolute integrity. After study and investigation we will establish administrative and purchasing practices in the Highway Department that will absolutely assure the most effective, economic and honest administration of the Highway Department it is possible to achieve.

It's one thing to let contracts to low bidders. It's another thing to hold the low bidder to the standards and specifications required for good construction. There will be no pet, out-of-State contractors while I am the Highway Commissioner. There will be no lax or "look the other way" inspections so that poor, sub-standard work will pass.

Second, I will start a research program to find out why some of the highways built back in the 1930s are holding up better than some of the Interstates built in the last few years.

With better management we can get good roads and highways faster.

With tighter money control we can get more for the taxpayer's dollar.

If you can't believe what a candidate says while he's running for office, how can you believe what he says about what he has done or will do while he's in the office.

'Shag' Pyron is now denying that he spent $304,000 of taxpayers' money to build an Interchange access on I-55 leading to his family's farm. In an Associated Press story of July 31 he said, "It was federally approved and federally bought before I ever became highway commissioner."

That is not true. That interchange was built by 'Shag' Pyron for 'Shag' Pyron. The Federal Government refused to pay for construction because the Interchange was not justified by traffic use. Therefore, the Mississippi taxpayers had to pay 100% instead of 10% of the construction costs. The money spent on 'Shag's' Interchange, used properly, could have built interchanges at nine other locations.

This is not honest use of taxpayers' money.

I am extremely grateful to all the people who voted for me and voluntarily worked so hard for better roads and highways in the Southern District. Only two percent more would have given us a first primary win. With your continued help we can have a total victory on August 26 and really get our highway program off dead center.

My family and I appreciate your vote and effort. Let's finish the job in the second primary.

Sincerely,
Tom Stennis

Lack of funds closes TIP line

The existence of the TIP (Turn in a pusher) line is past the critical stage, said executive director of the Mississippi Coast Crime Commission Earl E. Riley.

"We're at the eulogy stage now," he said. "Unless further donations are forthcoming, the TIP line will close down August 29."

The TIP line, which was initiated in the three coastal counties November 19, 1971 by the Mississippi Coast Crime Commission in co-sponsorship with the seven coastal chambers of commerce, will run out of operating funds on that date.

The principal target of the TIP line was to identify the pushers of illegal drugs through information provided by citizens on a confidential basis. The lines are manned by trained personnel on a 24-hour basis, seven days a week.

And, according to Riley, the lines service fix to six calls a day on narcotics violators. More than 2,500 valid tips have been received in the TIP line's four years of existence, with the information being disseminated to the appropriate law enforcement agencies.

"In addition, the TIP lines have been made available in at least three cases involving murder, with marked success," said crime commission president Joe M.

"We are proud," said Hancock, "of the national recognition given the Mississippi Coast through this program. Reader's Digest was one of the national publications which singled out the TIP program in this area. Our claim to being the largest TIP Program in the United States, geographically, covering over 1,800 square miles, has never been disputed. Upon request, we have assisted cities from Honolulu to the Carolinas in providing technical information in order that they might implement similar programs within their areas.

The TIP line has also extended to take in tips about crimes against business -- vandalism, shoplifting, burglary, and employee thefts. Like the narcotics tips, the TIP line now receives an average of five or six calls a day in this area.

The reason for the shutdown at the end of this month, said Riley is that not all the municipalities and counties on the Coast have contributed to the TIP fund this year that goes to pay the phone bills. In fact, said Riley, the only ones to donate funds or services this year are Bay St. Louis, Long Beach, Biloxi, and the Hancock County Board of Supervisors. "We're hoping that this last appeal," said Riley, "will tickle the feet of those who have yet to donate to the program this year. Otherwise, August 29 will be the last day."

Riley said that the program's budget called for about $5,000 for its yearly budget, including advertising and phone bills, etc. The phone bills, he says, run about $200 a month.

Among those who have not yet donated to the TIP line for this year, said Riley, are Harrison and Jackson Counties, Waveland, Pass Christian, and Gulfport.

"For the past two and a half years", said crime commission president Joe Hancock, "the commission has carried the financial load in sustaining this program through its own budget. The financial obligations of maintaining the TIP telephone lines, together with promotional aids, have been a continual drain on the crime commission's budget. "Following a personal appearance in the spring of this year," continued Hancock, "the Harrison County Board of Supervisors unanimously approved a financial allocation. This approved allocation has not been received by the crime commission as of this date, despite several verbal follow-ups with some members of the board and the chancery clerk."

"The 'bottom line' to this apparent eulogy," concluded Hancock, "is that unless the remaining municipal and county governments provide the requested financial assistance by August 29, the TIP program will cease to exist."

Waller pushes compulsory education for progress

Governor Bill Waller said last week that economic development and education "would have to go hand and hand" as the number one priority of the next administration in Mississippi.

"Economic development has to be number one," he said, "and that theory leads to the question of how to have a more effective education system in grades 1-12 to keep the student in school to learn one useable and saleable skill."

Waller said that he hoped that some form of compulsory education system would be devised.

"I think we're losing some 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, and 12th graders that are not learning a skill and this relates directly to whether or not we will continue to bring in blue-chip industries with high-paying [illegible]," he said.

During his weekly radio program, A TALK WITH THE GOVERNOR, Waller also repeated his support for single-member districts for legislators.

"I have supported single-member districts because I hope I am an advocate for the little guy, the uninformed voter who has a lot to learn about government directly through a representative or a senator and who does not have a lobbyist to speak for him in the capital," Waller said.

"My theory is that when you have a smaller geographical area to represent, you can do a better job if elected; and then from the voters' viewpoint, you'll have more responsive government if the voter really knows who's in the capital speaking for him," the governor said.

State's power rates rank nation's lowest

A recent survey of residential electric service costs indicates that rates paid by Mississippi Power Company's customers compare favorably with rates throughout the nation, according to Perry Gibson, local manager.

"Each month, the Jacksonville (Florida) Electric Authority issues a report of electric service costs for residential customers in some 50 cities across the United States. For July, Mississippi Power Company ranked the eighth lowest compared with the companies surveyed for the cost of 1,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity.

"The highest cost of electric service per 1,000 kilowatt-hours among the areas surveyed was in New York City with a charge of $70.19 for 1,000 KWH. Chattanooga, Tenn., residents paid the lowest rates-$22.21 for 1,000 KWH.

"A residential customer of Mississippi Power Company paid $29.87 for 1,000 kilowatt-hours of electric service in July. This means that the cost of 1,000 KWH for Mississippi Power customers was $40 less than in New York and only about $7 more than in Chattanooga," he said. The survey does not include sales tax.

Gibson said that most Mississippi Power customers' electric service bills have been higher this summer than in 1974 because of the increased cost of fuel used to generate electricity and increased consumption because the weather has been warmer.

"In addition, air conditioning uses more electricity than we generally realize. Typical residential customer uses about twice as much electricity in mid-summer as in April," he explained.

Other cities in the Jacksonville survey included Philadelphia, Pa., ($53.23); St. Petersburg, Fla., ($40.56); San Antonio, Tex., ($36.44); Raleigh, N. C., ($31.49); and Los Angeles, Cal., ($30.17).

Gibson emphasized that the survey results underscore Mississippi Power Company's determination to maintain reasonable electric service rates for its customers.

Park director sets hearing on Vicksburg Park

Dr. [illegible] W. Meredith, Mississippi Park Commission Executive Director, announced today that a public hearing on the planned Vicksburg Area Park has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Aug. 15, at the Ramada Inn Convention Hall in Vicksburg.

"We wish to invite all elected officials, business, and civic leaders along with interested residents in the area to attend this important public forum," Dr. Meredith stated.

"It is now and shall remain the Park Commission's intent to be impartial and objective on the question of the Vicksburg Area Park and to solicit the majority public opinion in determining what course to take on the Vicksburg development."

"We firmly feel that the final decision on the outdoor amphitheatre or the restoration of the Sprague must be made by Vicksburg residents," he said.

Federation praises small business programs

The National Federation of Independent Business has praised the Waller administration's programs of assistance to small business in Mississippi.

In a report to some 5,000 Mississippi members of the organization, the NFIB said, "The Governor acted promptly and decisively to keep his promise to open the doors of state government procurement to the full spectrum of small and independent business...by issuing a strongly worded executive order requiring all state agencies, departments and institutions to purchase a fair proportion of their supplies, commodities and services from small independently owned and operated businesses within the state."

"The issuance of the executive order rounded out a program of small business assistance developed by the Waller administration in Mississippi which has been acclaimed as the foremost in the nation," the report continued.

"It was begun in 1972 with the launching of a small business loan program which has guaranteed loans totalling more than $3 million to 147 small businesses and since has been expanded to include the establishment of the nation's first state-operated Office of Minority Business Enterprise and the Mississippi Economic Development Corporation, a totally new and innovative approach to the creation and stimulation of capitol development for the establishment and expansion

Task force to handle UDICO bankruptcy

Dr. Robert L. Robinson, Director of the Mississippi A & I Board and the head of a special task force appointed by Governor Waller, said Friday that the question of the future of the UDICO Plant in Canton would be answered within 30 days.

UDICO, Madison County's largest employer, filed voluntary bankruptcy July 28 and left over 375 persons without jobs.

Governor Waller immediately appointed a special task force to "speed up reopening the plant and to provide relief to the workers who were left without jobs."

Robinson said that the Governor and a special task force of state officials and Madison County leaders have met almost daily with bank representatives, prospects to buy the plant, and the bankruptcy referee.

He said that the staff in the Madison county food stamp office has been increased from two to 17 in an effort to provide aid to the persons left without jobs. He also said that the waiting period for unemployment compensation was shortened" as short as the federal law would allow."

Welcome centers attract visitors

The Mississippi A & I Board reports that more than 400 travelers a day are stopping at two new Mississippi welcome centers located just outside of McComb and Meridian.

A spokesman for the A & I Board said that they have had visitors from nearly every state and from over 34 foreign countries. He said some of the countries include: Germany, Wales, Czechoslovakia, Taiwan, India, Brazil, Afghanistan, Turkey, Peru, Greece and Argentina.

VA extends benefits

The Veterans Administration extended for nine months the educational benefits to those working toward undergraduate College Degrees. It is estimated that 13,000 veterans will take advantage of this new benefit at a cost of $26.3 million dollars for the first year.

The extension is available only to those originally eligible for 36 months entitlement and they must have exhausted the 36 months while enrolled in a bachelor or first professional degree program.

Applicants who have associate degrees are eligible for the extension but not those who have or who are eligible to receive bachelor or first professional degrees. An applicant with an associate degree cannot use the nine months extension to obtain a second associate degree.

Veterans eligible for educational benefits under more than one law, may not receive more than 46 months training, plus an extension to the end of the enrollment period.

Veterans who hold graduate degrees may not use the extension for either graduate or undergraduate study.

In short the above means that a veteran must have had 18 months continuous service, which satisfied his service obligation, after Jan. 31, 1955 to be eligible for 36 months of schooling. He must have used up this 36 months entitlement working toward an undergraduate degree, before that veteran is eligible for the nine months extension. This nine months extension must be used toward getting that undergraduate degree.

Contact your County Service Officer, Chester L. Carvey in the Court House or call 467-[illegible] for information on all veterans benefits or problems.

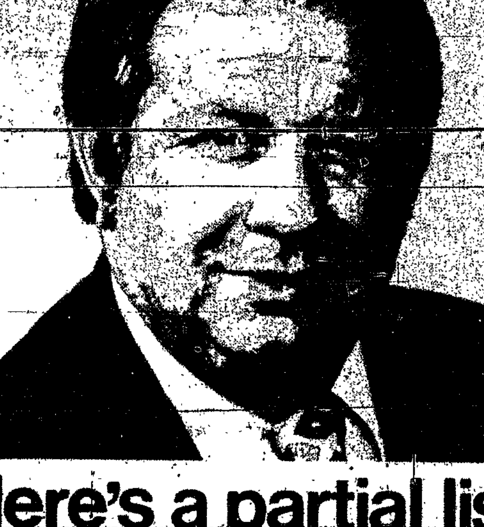
THANK YOU

On August 5 in the Democratic primary, the voters of Mississippi gave me a wonderful vote for Lieutenant Governor. I want to thank my friends who were responsible for the support I received. To those who voted for me I will be forever grateful. And to those who supported other candidates, I earnestly solicit your vote and support in the second primary.

BRAD DYE

(Pd. Ad. By Hancock County Friends) Approved by Brad Dye.

Let's put 16 years of experience back to work.



Here's a partial list of what I want to do:

ONE:
INTEREST FORGIVENESS
To work to obtain interest forgiveness of the Governor's Emergency Council loan for both Hancock County and the Cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland. This can result in a savings of approximately $400,000.00 to the taxpayers.

TWO:
GASOLINE TAXES
To work toward reducing gasoline taxes. At the present time our tax is higher than in any other coastal county. This can and should be lowered.

THREE:
EDUCATION
To work toward an improved educational system, with particular emphasis on special education. Additionally, to bring teacher salaries to a level comparable at least with our neighboring states.

FOUR:
REHABILITATION
To work for the improvement of penal and mental health institutions throughout the state, and toward the creation of more and finer facilities for juveniles and for the mentally retarded or handicapped.

FIVE:
GOOD GOVERNMENT
To work for the improvement of all phases of state government. To support and encourage sound economic principles, and the types of spending that will in fact, bring the greatest value in return to the taxpayer. And to work to improve the lines of communication between the legislature and the people.

He's been there.

TODAY IN THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF THE MISSISSIPPI HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT,

Projects under contract now total approximately $131,000,000.

To be let August 26 (see note below) are projects totaling approximately $32,000,000.

Yet to be designated projects total approximately $200,000,000.

(NOTE: In this group is extensive work on Interstate I-10, following a court decision. Each of us is a highway user and each of us has feelings about environmental protection. All highway department employees, including your commissioners are EMPLOYEES OF EVERY CITIZEN, regardless of individual beliefs. Shag Pyron believes a good steward listens to his employees ... that every taxpayer has a right to be heard ... that when finally determined, the majority's will is the CORRECT COURSE. Although I-10 work was held up pending a decision of the courts, it is now ready to be put under contract.)

The half-truths and falsehoods carelessly sown by Shag Pyron's opponent would not deserve the courtesy of an answer if they were only directed at Shag Pyron alone.

BUT IN THE MATTER OF HIS STEWARDSHIP TO THE TAXPAYERS OF MISSISSIPPI, BOTH WORDS AND ACTIONS OF THIS OPPONENT MUST BE CONSIDERED FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE CITIZENS.

With the many millions of your tax dollars to be invested in good highways on your behalf, we must discuss QUALIFICATIONS FOR SERVICE.

WEIGH THE FACTS.

THE STEWARDSHIP OF SHAG PYRON AND HIS OPPONENT NEED TO BE LAID SIDE BY SIDE BEFORE YOU, THE TAX PAYING HIGHWAY USERS.

The main responsibility is leading the efforts of more than 1200 dedicated Mississippians in building for their fellow citizens more and better highways at less cost:

SHAG PYRON

1. Has proven his capability to lead in planning, implementing and building more than 1,960 miles of highways, roads and bridges.
2. Can operate any tools, equipment or machinery used in highway work.
3. Knows concrete, asphalt, courtesy, honesty, honor, truth, work and the work value of others with whom he works. Knows draining, bridge building, highway construction, materials and is capable of highway engineering know how.
4. Has a record of attendance at more than 15,000 conferences and 86,000 communications with those he has worked with during his service as your Highway Commissioner.
5. Obeys the law in awarding contracts to those qualified and approved to bid under Mississippi Licensing Laws who meet all necessary requirements and qualifications with the low bid. WITHOUT EXCEPTION SHAG PYRON MAKES THE DECISION THAT IS IN THE BEST INTEREST OF THE CITIZENS. Wherever the best interest of all citizens of Mississippi can be served, contracts go to Mississippians.
6. Is a leader of the fine team which performed so tirelessly during Hurricane Camille; the team whose work was recently marked by praise from the Federal Highway Administration ranking this group's efforts fourth best in the nation.
7. Would have built the Martinsville interchange exit to honor the commitment the highway department made to Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Wilson in 1963 for the benefit of parents of students at Co-Lin Junior College; for the many citizens, homes and businesses it serves, only his predecessor beat him to it.
8. Knows where he lives; and from newspaper stories about his opponent's antics knows where the opponent lives.

LOOK AT THE FACTS, HONESTLY!
LOOK AT THE RESPONSIBILITY.
LOOK AT THE PROVEN PROFESSIONAL QUALIFICATIONS.
LOOK AT THE OBVIOUS PERSONAL QUALIFICATIONS OR DISQUALIFICATIONS.
LOOK AT THE ACCOMPLISHMENTS.
LOOK AT THE TASK AHEAD.

IN HIS FIRST CAMPAIGN, THE STATEMENT WAS MADE "PYRON MUST WIN!" NOW, MORE THAN EVER IT IS VITAL TO TAXPAYERS, THE MOTORING PUBLIC ...

HIS OPPONENT

1. Knows highways connect from one town to another; that you drive on the right side of the road in the U.S.
2. Rides on roads constructed by Shag Pyron and other Highway Department specialists.
3. Attempts to build an image by relating his name to that of Mississippi's internationally most-respected statesman whose office reports that "if there is any relationship, it's mighty distant."
4. Has experience as a retail furniture dealer who has repeated judgements against him for collection of amounts owed; including several from the Mississippi Tax Commission. (Did he honestly buy from dishonest people whom he Honestly doesn't want to pay, honestly!) And apparently that includes all Mississippians represented by their State Tax Commission.
5. Protests Shag Pyron's determination to be a good steward of taxpayer dollars claiming out-of-state favoritism. This is always a handy generalization like "wine-bibber."
6. Is reported in the Coast as having been in an altercation with an older employee hitting him in the face with glasses on.
7. Has caused the people of Copiah, Lincoln, Pike and Lawrence Counties some incredulous thoughts by his inaccurate remarks about the Martinsville exit.
8. Did you know (or else the research department of his high priced ad agency did not try to find out) that Shag Pyron was not a member of the Highway Department when the Martinsville Interchange was designated.

His Daddy's ship

Six-year-old Scott Wayne Caron wore his father's Medal of Honor to the christening of the DD-970 destroyer at Ingalls Shipbuilding division of Litton Industries in Pascagoula Miss. Saturday. The eighth destroyer in a series of 30 new, multi-mission ships being built for the Navy by Ingalls, the Caron is the first ship of the series to be named for an enlisted man.

Navy praised at Ingalls christening

PASCAGOULA Miss. – The present difficulties of the United States in defining its proper role in world affairs are convincing evidence that a strong Navy is vital to the nation's security, Congressman Thad Cochran (R-Miss) said in an address at Ingalls Shipyards Aug. 9.

He spoke at the christening ceremony for DD-970, the eighth ship in the series of advanced, multi-mission destroyers being produced for the Navy by Ingalls Shipbuilding division of Litton Industries. Christened Caron, the new ship is named for Wayne Caron, a navy hospital corpsman who was killed in Vietnam in 1968 while treating wounded Marines. He was posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor for his actions.

"We are all free today and hopefully will be tomorrow because of ships like this and men like Wayne Caron," Cochran said. "The 22,000 workers at Ingalls, the family of Corpsman Caron, and every American all have a right to be proud of this ship. But we also have a duty. We must never forget those people who have died to help keep us free."

Noting that he had taken part in the groundbreaking ceremonies for Ingalls' west bank facility shipyard, Cochran said, "This modern technology has placed Ingalls Shipbuilding, and Litton Industries, in the forefront of developing shipbuilding techniques that have made possible ships such as this. I take pride in our state's ability to help meet the needs of our country's Navy through first-class workmanship."

He said the Caron represents the vitality of the modern Navy's shipbuilding program.

"Along with other members of the Spruance class, it will provide an unprecedented anti-submarine capability, as well as a capability to perform many of the more traditional duties of destroyers," he said.

Leonard Erb, Vice President of Litton Industries and President of Ingalls, noted that the Caron is the first vessel of the 30-ship destroyer program to be named for an enlisted man.

"The name Caron stands side-by-side with the names of this country's most distinguished Naval officers after whom other ships in the 963 series have been named," Erb said, "Navy names, which now along with Caron, will be remembered forever."

Erb said that Ingalls has a fleet of destroyers already in assembly, with 18 ships in physical production and two more scheduled to start this month. The lead ship in the series, DD-963, is only days from delivery. He also noted that LHA-1, the first ship in the series of general purpose amphibious assault ships, designed and being built by Ingalls, returned Saturday from its first sea trials.

Erb said LHA-1 is a unique Navy ship with the capability to carry to combat, place ashore, and support combat Marines and all the necessary equipment and vehicles including aircraft.

"On that ship is a 300 bed hospital where future Navy Corpsmen will support the Marines and administer medical attention to those who have first been given emergency treatment in the combat zone ashore by the Corpsman Carons of the future," Erb said. "On Monday I sailed with LHA-1 on her initial trials, on the specific date that was set back in April. They were very good trials, and there is no question that the LHA will be an outstanding ship and will give the Navy-Marine Corps team a unique capability for protecting the interests of the United States and the free world."

Erb said that another significant event during the past week, was the Navy announcement that Litton and the Navy had successfully completed negotiations to set a firm target price for the DD-963 program.

"This process is called 'reset'," Erb said, "and was provided for in the contract as originally agreed to in 1970. Despite the uncertainties involved in estimating the cost of work and materials in advance of actual design and production experience, the newly agreed-to target price is within the ceiling price set five years ago.

"This is clear evidence," Erb continued, "that another team – the Navy-Industry team – can operate effectively, contrary to what those who like to dwell only on bad news would like to have us believe. I am honored to have been a member of the Navy-Marine Corps team in the past – and now to be a member of the Navy-Industry team which produces ships like the Caron, being named today for a very brave and truly unselfish young man."

Other speakers on the christening program were Rear Admiral R. L. Walters, Project Manager, Major Surface Combatant Ships, Naval Material Command; Col. R. H. Barnard, Director, Marine Corps Special Projects and HM3 Caron's Battalion Commander in Vietnam; and Capt. William E. McGarrah, Supervisor of Shipbuilding, Pascagoula.

The ship was christened by Corpsman Caron's widow, now Mrs. Richard D. Young, of Swampscott, Massachusetts. Caron's mother, Mrs. Aime J. Caron of Millersburg, Pa., served as Matron of Honor.

Hancock students to participate in dental program

Elementary school children in Hancock County will receive topical fluoride applications this year sponsored by the State Board of Health, according to Dr. Aaron Trubman, Director of the Division of Public Health Dentistry.

During the last school year, 107 school districts or private schools participated in the mouth rinse program. Some 100,000 children were participants in the weekly program.

The sodium fluoride solution used is colorless, odorless, and practically tasteless. Very little school time is required to actually conduct the procedure.

"The entire process takes approximately three minutes," said Dr. Trubman. "Once a week, the teacher dispenses the solution and supervises the mouthrinsing."

State Board of Health dental personnel make periodic visits to each school to see how the efforts are progressing. The entire cost of the program is underwritten by the board of Health.

"Studies have shown that self-application of this fluoride agent has effectively reduced tooth decay by twenty percent and more," said Dr. Trubman. "But the mouthrinse is not a substitute for adequate fluoride in drinking water, which is the most effective method of reducing tooth decay."

DuPont refused in Georgia

In August 1973, the state of Georgia refused DuPont's permit for a deep well disposal system at a proposed Brunswick plant and suggested instead the ocean barging method.

R. S. Howard, the director of the Georgia Environmental Protection Division, in a letter dated August 17, 1973 told DuPont that "the only high quality source for drinking water and industrial water is that of the principal artesian aquifer. Contamination of this resource would be a catastrophe." Howard goes on to write: "We (the Georgia state commission) don't believe that a single test well, as proposed, or even a larger number of them would provide essential, complete assurance against any adverse effects to the ... reservoir of the artesian aquifer. We can't base a long term judgment of the aquifer's protection on a single, short-term test," the letter said.

Homes argues that DuPont's proposed deep well system in DeLisle would also endanger the artesian water supply of the Gulf Coast area because of the unknown quality of the rock layer that is supposed to hold the wastes underground.

In DuPont's response to the Howard letter, Larry Kniffin, the project coordinator for the DuPont plant, wrote back: "The DuPont Company believes that under proper conditions ocean barging is an acceptable method of waste disposal," Kniffin went on to say that in this particular case, however, ocean barging was not possible because, according to federal law, DuPont would need an impact study, and the company didn't have the time to get the added permits and get the plant operational by 1977.

Kniffin also said in the letter that the company would need "significant time to explain to the public" the advantages of ocean barging.

The proposed plant in DeLisle was originally planned to be operational by 1977, but DuPont has stopped construction plans because of the economic situation and is now waiting for a more favorable time to begin construction on its 2,200 acres north of the Bay of St. Louis.

The Save the Bay attorney also claims that another objection to the DuPont deep well system is that DuPont uses a lower quality of ore which makes for a greater amount of waste material. Quoting from a statement made by the National Wildlife Federation that was filed at the MAWPCC hearing, Homes said, the chemicals company "uses a low grade ore, ileminite with a 40-50 percent content of impurities. All the rest (of the titanium dioxide producers) use much higher grade ores, such as rutile with titanium contents in excess of 95 percent." Homes says a higher quality ore would reduce the amount of waste that would have to be disposed.

Homes also referred to an article in the January 9, 1974 issue of the national magazine "Chemical Week" which said that companies were now using other methods of waste disposal rather than the deep well injection system.

The article, "Deep wells are down but not out," discussed DuPont's use of the deep well in DeLisle. The article concluded with: "The days of injection-well disposal appear to be numbered. DuPont's experience at Gulfport (sic) is certain to be studied carefully because there is no question that the company is bucking a trend."

Pictorial history of Mansion to be published

Plans were unveiled at a press conference Wednesday for a special pictorial history of the governor's Mansion. The book, which is scheduled to come off the press in late August, will be published by the non-profit Mississippi Executive Mansion Commission, Inc.

The Commission was formed earlier this year to raise funds for the perpetual preservation of the governor's Mansion as a National Historic Landmark. Dr. R.A. McLemore, Mississippi historian and former Director of the Department of Archives and History, serves as president of the Commission.

Charles A. Carter, Chairman of the Board of Bankers Trust Savings and Loan Association in Mississippi, presented Governor Waller a check to underwrite publication of the book - the first history of the structure and its occupants since it was first authorized by the Legislature in 1833.

Carter said Bankers Trust would make the firm's 55 offices available as distribution points for persons throughout the state who would like to purchase copies of the book during this Bicentennial period.

The purchase price for the 80-page full color book will be three dollars with all net proceeds going to the Mansion Commission for the preservation fund. The book has received the enthusiastic endorsement of the Mississippi American Revolution Bicentennial commission.

"Bankers Trust is quite pleased to have been invited by the Executive Mansion Commission to participate in this endeavor, and we are proud to devote our facilities and services to promotion of book sales as part of the Bicentennial observance," Carter said. "The Company's Board of Directors felt the restoration of the Governor's Mansion was an extremely worthwhile project. We're proud of our State and we enjoy its beauty from the windows of our home office just across the street."

The history was prepared by Dr. David Sansing of the University of Mississippi, with the close cooperation of the Mississippi Department of Archives and History. Dr. Sansing said the pictorial history covers the period from 1833, when the Legislature first authorized construction of the Mansion, to the present and a brief photo tour of the newly renovated Mansion.

The book is being published by Holiday Press in Olive Branch.

The Governor had high praise for the actions of Bankers Trust in handling the sale of the book and urged all citizens to purchase copies at one of the Bankers Trust offices.

"This is a history that every child and parent should read during this Bicentennial period. Our State has come a long way since 1833, and we believe it is well that we pause now to honor our past. We also believe it is a worthwhile effort that will receive an enthusiastic response from Mississippians throughout the State," Waller said.

Cathy Starita becomes bride of Harry Stephens

Miss Cathy Ann Starita, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Starita, Bay St. Louis, became the bride of Harry Stephens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stephens, also of Bay St. Louis, Aug. [illegible] at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church.

Rev. Michael Tracey, associate pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of candlelight silk organza over satin. Calais lace enhanced with seed pearls trimmed the bodice and a flounce of similar lace encircled the full skirt and cathedral length train. Her short veil of silk illusion fell from a headpiece of lace and pearls and she carried a bouquet of white and pink carnations and baby's breath.

Mrs. William Lefiluer attended her sister as bridesmaid and Miss Patty Campbell of Picayune, was bridesmaid.

Brian Stephens, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer.

Arrangements of pink and white carnations and gladiolas decorated Treasure's Shamrock room for the reception following the ceremony.

Mrs. Starita received guests wearing a floor length mint green silk gown, and the mother of the groom chose a floor length gown of coral crepe. Corsages of pink roses and baby's breath completed their attire.

The bride's table, overlaid with a lace cloth, held a two-tiered wedding cake decorated with cascades of white spring roses. Silver branched candelabra completed the table decorations.

Mrs. Stella [illegible], assisted by [illegible] and Mrs. Gary Barrett, Gulfport, presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. Ernest Faye, Gulfport, kept the guest register.

Ole Miss institutes criminal justice course

UNIVERSITY, Miss. – The mid-South's first Master of Criminal Justice program will be offered by the University of Mississippi this fall.

The program has been approved by the Board of Trustees of Institutions of Higher Learning, and applications are currently being accepted from interested graduate students.

"Designed to develop an understanding of the criminal justice system and its relations to other institutions," the new graduate curriculum deals with the police involvements, the prosecutor and his functions, the court system, and both institutional and community-oriented activities.

"Practicing criminal justice officials and persons desiring to enter the field at a professional level have constantly requested such a program," said Dr. Chester Quarles, director of the Ole Miss Law Enforcement Program.

"No other MCJ degree exists in Mississippi at this time, but one state university does offer a Master of Science degree with an emphasis in criminal justice. Schools nearest the Oxford campus offering similar programs are in Texas to the west, Florida to the east, and Illinois to the north," he said.

Complementing the existing undergraduate programs in Law Enforcement and Public Administration, the MCJ program will involve Departments of Political Science, Sociology and Anthropology, the School of Law, and the Forensic Science Program within the Chemistry Department.

The new curriculum comprises a minimum of 30 semester hours of coursework with an internship required of students with no work experience in the criminal justice system. A core of 15 semester hours is required.

RONDINELLA - The first BWYC Junior RONDINELLA Sunfish Championship was held at the Club on Tuesday, August 5. After finishing the five-race, single-handed series with two firsts and three seconds, Randy Santa Cruz became the Bay Waveland Junior Sunfish Champion. The Junior Rondinella series was sailed among skippers under sixteen years of age. Final Standings:

Randy Santa Cruz	7½
Gigi Staehle	19
Rod Stieffel	19¾
Dennis Stieffel	20½
John Gordon	24
Amy Chapman	27

BAY BOURBON - On August 6, the Bay Waveland skipperettes completed the finals of the Bay Bourbon all-girl series with Cindy Stieffel as the winner. The fickle westerly wind along with a little squall from the north caused frustration and elation as positions changed radically during each of the three races. Final standings in the Bay Bourbon Series:

Cindy Stieffel, crew Janet Hamilton and Amy Chapman - 4½.

Mimi Eagan, crew Gigi Staehle and Elizabeth Santa Cruz - 5¾.

Judy McKinney, crew Grace Santa Cruz and Tracey Stieffel - 12.

Ann Stieffel, crew Cynthia Allen and Charlotte Gordon - 15.

KNOST - Bay Waveland skipperettes earned a third place in Pass Christian Yacht Club's Annual All-Girl Knost Regatta. Mimi Eagan sailing last weekend, the first race for BWYC with Judy McKinney and Ellen Eagan crewing, was in second place rapidly gaining on first place Biloxi Yacht Club when the wind died, turning the race into a temporary drifting match before it returned from another direction, leaving the Bay Waveland Scot to finish last, with Betty Smith of St. Andrew's Bay Yacht Club in first place.

FLYING SCOT NORTH AMERICAN CHAMPIONSHIP - As host for the 1975 Flying Scot North American Championship, Southern Yacht Club opened its week-long activities with the three-race Junior NAC. Rod Stieffel, with crew Tommy Heausler and Woody Stieffel won the opening race in a twenty knot breeze. Another Bay Waveland skipper won the second race as Edgar Santa Cruz with Dennis Stieffel and Corky Hadden crewing crossed the line ahead of the sixteen boat fleet. Hunter Riddle of Pensacola Yacht Club won the third race, securing his overall victory after two second place finishes.

The Fine employees of your State Highway Department team have a Right to be Mad!

AN OPEN APOLOGY TO FELLOW WORKERS FROM SHAG PYRON

W. H. (Shag) PYRON
Hazlehurst, Mississippi

August 13, 1975

My opponent has used words like "poor maintenance" and "slow construction" to describe efforts of Highway Department employees.

Perhaps he doesn't remember Hurricane Camille which struck the Mississippi Gulf Coast six years ago this month. Let's refresh his memory.

Before Camille, approximately 30,000 cars traveled Highway 90 daily. But, the day after Camille, not one car could drive across Highway 90 through Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties.

That same Monday, 500 dedicated Mississippi Highway Department employees literally cut their way to the Mississippi Gulf Coast through trees and debris. They were concerned for south Mississippians who might face contamination of water and shortage of fuel and power.

By the next day, these valiant rescue workers had helped unite survivors with their loved ones, homes and possessions.

But efforts did not stop there. Federal funds were secured to repair Highway 90, Bay St. Louis and Back Bay Bridges. These projects have been completed. Over-lay projects from the Louisiana to the Alabama lines are also practically complete and today, from 40,000 to 50,000 vehicles travel Highway 90.

Should another disaster occur, the Mississippi Highway Department Maintenance Area Headquarters on U.S. 49 is equipped with large emergency fuel tanks and a self-sustaining electric power plant.

I know had it not been for the team-work of department employees, the job could not have been accomplished.

Sincerely,

W. H. Pyron

Shag Pyron

Candidates Qualifications

Shag Pyron deeply regrets the unfounded criticism of Highway Department employees by an opponent whose lack of qualifications keep him from waging a campaign on the proper issue: CANDIDATE QUALIFICATIONS.

Instead, in an attempt to run a political race, the opponent attacks a superior job done by hundreds of fine Mississippians.

Because it is a political caper devised by misdirection and falsehood, the absurd remarks of Shag Pyron's opponent are not worthy of reply.

But, when these remarks cast a shadow on the work of hundreds of dedicated Mississippians, the record MUST be set straight ... HONESTLY!

Possibly All South Mississippi Employees have a right to be mad.

Mayor, sanitation worker in altercation

Read this

Jackson County Bureau

Ocean Springs Mayor Tom Stennis and Thomas Galle will appear in Ocean Springs city court next week on charges stemming from an altercation in front of the Ocean Springs Police Station Wednesday morning.

According to Police Chief Matt Cox, both Galle, 48, a resident of General Pershing avenue, Ocean Springs, and Stennis, 37, signed assault and battery charges against each other following the [illegible] incident. Galle also charged Stennis with destroying private property, since his glasses were broken during the fight.

Cox said an argument started between the two when Stennis walked into the police station as Galle, a Jackson County sanitation department worker, was standing near one of the offices.

Cox said the two men left the station and apparently the argument continued outside.

Both Stennis and Galle posted $100 bond, pending a court hearing Tuesday, May 13.

Stennis, when asked for a comment concerning the incident Wednesday, said the argument stems from board action which prohibited Galle from keeping his county garbage truck in his yard.

According to Stennis neighbors complained about this practice and also that Galle allegedly operated a carpentry business at his home.

Stennis said Galle apparently blames him f the action.

Galle could no reached for comme The Daily Herald day morning.

City officials

Justice pro tem sought for cases

By BETTY MILSTED

OCEAN SPRINGS — Two city officials facing charges in City Court were present during a called meeting of the Board of Aldermen Thursday to select a police justice to hear their cases.

The two officials, Mayor Tom Stennis and Alderman Joe Garrard, were present as was City Attorney Oscar Jordan. The mayor is charged with assault and has filed charges of assault against Tom Galle, county sanitation employe.

Garrard is charged by Evarist Noble with littering by throwing a beer can on Jaycee hut premises.

Brad Lemon, acting as mayor pro tem found a lawyer outside of the city who would hear the case.

After some discussion of three lawyer choices, a motion was approved that Charles Ford, Pascagoula attorney, be requested to serve as a police justic pro tem to hear the two cases. Attorney Charles Pitcher was selected as alternate.

William F. Dale Jr. made the motion which was seconded by Larry Gartman and approved on a 2-1 vote with Lemon voting "nay." Curtis Lloyd was said to be in Laurel.

Garrard asked that the minutes reflect that he was out of the room while the selection of a justice was made and Stennis said he saw "no reason for me to leave the room," Garrard added.

Mayor Tom Stennis filed charge against Thomas Galle of General Persl ing Avenue after Galle filed an affadavi Stennis said.

Hearing is set for Tuesday in Ci Court.

When a political leader stoops to verbal altercation with another employee of the taxpayers, is he really capable of handling ANY of the taxpayers' employees in ANY government capacity?

Should more than 1,200 fine employees of our competent, efficient and effective highway department, who must work to earn a living for their families and do a good job for fellow Mississippians, be subject to a [illegible] [illegible] charges and assault?

Mississippi College offers secretarial review

CLINTON—Two courses designed to serve as a review for the Certified Professional Secretary Examination will be offered by the School of Business and Public Administration at Mississippi College starting this fall.

The first of these undergraduate courses will be taught Monday nights at 7 p.m. this fall with three hours credit given. It is designed to give instruction in modern office operations as well as allow the student to develop a body of knowledge surrounding these procedures.

Also included in the course will be a review of environmental relationships in business, communications, and decision making. The overall scope of the first part is to upgrade experienced, on-the-job secretaries by providing a refresher in the basic skills in addition to giving the student study in the subject area that will aid in preparing for the CPS examination. This test is supervised by the National Secretaries Association and Mississippi College is one of the official testing centers for the examination.

The second course offered, CPS Review II, will be taught during the spring semester and will be a follow-up to the fall course. It will be a presentation of applied economics, management, and business organization, with a study of financial analysis and business mathematics. Included in this second part will be a review of the major elements of business law that are involved in a secretary's work as well as a review of standard office procedures.

Professional secretaries or those interested in taking the CPS Exam are invited to participate in these two courses. Additional information about them can be obtained through the School of Business and Public Administration at Mississippi College.

Seven records fall at Waveland Fishing Rodeo

Eats and drinks

Gobbling down hot dogs and gulping Cokes are several of the local anglers in the area who made their fishing debut last Saturday at the Waveland Jaycees Fishing Rodeo. The Waveland Jaycees ladies auxiliary provided the children with a concession stand where they could break from their fishing.

Despite heavy rains, 287 children turned out for the third annual Waveland Jaycees Fishing Rodeo Saturday at the Garfield Ladner Memorial Pier. Seven new records were set, and Benny Burst claimed the coveted King Fisherman III title for the most fish caught on the pier.

Many of the children arrived before the 6 a.m. start, and many of those braved the foul weather, staying right through until the 4 p.m. closing, competing for the fishing gear prizes.

Competition was divided into two classes: the pier competition and the Other class (which included fishing from boats, the seawall, and from the bayou). There were two age groups in the pier division – six-to-twelve year-olds and the teenagers' class.

Benny Burst claimed the king fisherman title by catching 13 pounds, ten ounces of fish from the pier. Johnny Binegar hooked what had to qualify as the most unusual catch of the day – a ten-ounce jelly fish.

Tommy Holzhauser caught the largest fish ever at the Waveland rodeo when he pulled in an 85-pound stingray in the Other division.

Byron Logan's record-setting one-pound, eight-ounce flounder also qualified as the largest fish in the pier division.

Other records set at the rodeo in the pier division were as follows: Leroy Asher, a 7½-ounce croaker; T. C. Mumme IV, an 8½-ounce mullet; and Merlin Saacks, a one-pound catfish. Besides Holzhauser's 85-pounder, there were two other records set in the Other division: Jody Fruetick, for a four-pound, four-ounce catfish; and Mark Bowers, with a 13-pound, nine-ounce red fish.

Tournament results are as follows:

SPORT TALK Q & A

By Charlie Henderson

Q: Isn't there a trend toward the "little man" in pro football now, like New England's Mack Herron?

A: If it's not a trend, at least the average size or smaller man is getting a chance. New Orleans' Howard Stevens is even smaller than Herron (they're both about 5-5, but Stevens is 10 pounds lighter at 160). The average college graduate today is about 5-10, 170 pounds, exactly the size of New England receiver Randy Vataha. Others in this size range include Harold Jackson of the Rams, Mel Gray and Terry Metcalf of the St. Louis Cardinals, Miami's Nat Moore, Pittsburg's Lynn Swann, Buffalo's Tony Greene, and many more. Obviously, size isn't everything.

Q: Teaser: Name a big-time pro football coach who earned $50,000 in 1974 and didn't coach a single win?

A: Allie Sherman, who once directed the fortunes of the New York Giants, was fired after a losing 1968 season, but he had a 10-year contract at $50,000 per year, so he kept on collecting his salary every year, without ever winning or losing a game.

Gulf National Cards claim league title

The Gulf National Cards, behind the shutout pitching of Kelly Geroux and Jeff Kergosien, moved past the Merchants Bank Expos last Thursday in the league standings, and then on Monday they wrapped up the Bay St. Louis Little League championship when they banged out a convincing 20-11 win over the Riemann Stars.

The Cards claimed the little league title by sweeping both the first and second rounds in league play. Merchants Bank fell one game short in second place in both rounds.

Merchants Bank entered the week's play one-half game ahead of the Cards but a head-to-head clash between the two league powers resulted in still another disappointment for the Expos. In the first round, the Expos had all but wrapped up the title when they dropped two of their last three games to finish in a tie with the Cards. The Cards then beat the Expos in a playoff game.

Gulf National	2
Merchants Bank	0

In the season's pivotal game, Kelly Geroux and Jeff Kergosien combined for a two-hit whitewashing of the Expos. With the win, the Cards moved into first place in the league standings, setting the stage for their league clincher against Riemann.

The Cards got both of their runs in the third inning with the help of an error, one hit, and two bases on balls. It was all the offensive the Cards pitchers needed as they handcuffed the Expos the rest of the way, striking out seven batters.

Geroux was credited with the win, and Kergosien got credit for the save. The curve balling Andrew Haas fanned 13 in the losing cause. He allowed just two hits in the loss.

In the season series between the two teams, Gulf National won three out of five.

Gulf National	002 000 - 2 2 1
Merchants Bank	000 000 - 0 2 1

Jaycees	12
Hancock	4

The Jaycees Twins claimed third place in the second round with a 12-4 win over the Hancock Bank Lions Friday at McDonald Field. Using a six-run outburst in the fifth inning, the Twins broke open a close game and pulled away to bury the Lions.

Harold Netto was credited with the mound win, and Melvin Barnes was charged with the loss.

Tommy Godwin was the only Lion hitter to gather at least two hits. Bobby Richardson and Tyrone Benoit both collected two safeties for the winners.

Jaycees	012 162-12 6 0
Hancock Bank	101 110-4 5 2

Gulf National	20
Riemann	11

The Gulf National Bank Cards clinched the Bay St. Louis Little League championship with the help of a nine-run rally in the fifth and a seven-run rally in the sixth inning. The late inning outbursts were enough to carry the Cards over the pesky Riemann Stars 20-11 in the finale of season play.

The Riemann Stars came from a 4-0 deficit in the second inning to tie the game but then the two teams locked into a scoreless duel until the Cards broke it open in the fifth.

Neal Wilkerson was credited with the pitching win in relief, and Donald Carver was charged with the loss.

Scott Saucier collected three hits for the losers. Joe Gex and Jeff Kergosien both gathered two hits for the winning Cards.

Off the pier

Local anglers tested their skills off the Garfield Ladner Memorial Pier in Waveland Saturday at the Jaycees fishing rodeo. Over 250 children and teenagers competed in three different divisions, braving the foul weather that left many as wet as the fish they caught.

Local netter wins another one

Lis Lagarde of Bay St. Louis chalked up still another tournament win last week when she swept through the Meridian Invitational Tournament for girls 14 and under, losing only one set. Lis also teamed up with Melanie Olson in the girls' 18-year-olds doubles bracket and moved to the finals before losing.

Lis Lagarde asserted her dominance in the girls' 14-and-under class as she breezed through her first two matches dropping just two games. In her first match last week, Lis shut out Rowena Ruff 6-0, 6-0. Lis then disposed of Julie Peabody in the semi-finals with almost as much ease as she won in straight sets 6-1, 6-1.

In the finals, Lis dropped her first set to Mary Roberts 5-7 before rebounding to win the match in an easy 6-1, 6-1 fashion.

Lis recently competed in the Tupelo Junior Open Tennis Championships where she was defeated in the quarter-finals by the eventual tournament winner in a split-set match. In the Tupelo tournament, the unseeded Lis downed Julie Swalm 6-3, 6-3 to earn the right to meet Meg Elliott in the quarter-finals.

Lis claimed the first set from the top-seeded Miss Elliott 6-1 before losing the last two sets 6-3, 6-3.

KANTCHA KETCHUM

By L.S. (Doc) Elliott

The past weekend was another bad one for fishing, too much rain with bad water everywhere which caused fresh water fishing to be out. Some croakers, red fish, drum and a few speckles and flounders being caught off the city pier and American Legion Pier.

I predict it will be about a week before fishing gets normal. The water will have to clear. Hard crabs have been caught on rising tides down Bayou Cadet way and down at Cedar Point.

Some jumbo crabs were caught - came out of Jourdan River but they were on the skinny side. Probably underfed due to the fresh water in the river.

Most of the local ponds and lakes have been taken over by grass this time of the year and are practically unfishable. Frogs are being caught, however, by those going after them. Soft crabbing and floundering has improved somewhat. Flounders are also being caught on hook and line mostly down by Bayou Cadet and off the pier at Coleman Avenue at Waveland.

Mrs. Hardie and the kids, Pansy, Nick, Rick, Darrel, and Jody Hardie were fishing off the seawall Saturday down beyond Dunbar Avenue, catching mostly croakers.

Mr. Hardie is with the Telephone Co. and is a local fisherman.

Met John A. Sarran, a retired policeman from New Orleans who has a home on Melody Lane. He was fishing off the seawall. John said he goes fishing most every day and gets his share of the finny tribe. Especially enjoys catching red fish. He said the Gulf Coast has wonderful fishing.

Jerry Davis and Jerry Norris do most of their fishing in Pearl River. Said when the river is clear they get their share of fresh water fish.

Ree Elliott and his wife Debbie operate the Sand and Dome theatres at Gulfport and the Old Time Ice Cream Parlor. They both love fishing and go on every occasion.

Buran Lee of Leetown is the owner of the Crossword Grocery. Said he does both fishing and hunting when he can take off.

Doug Archibald from Washington, D. C. on vacation here loves his fishing but said the 10 and 15-pound Stingarees he has been catching lately leave him a little gun shy.

Mark, Matthew and Marshall Daniels are at Camp Maryhill, a K. C. Camp at Pineville, La. They are my great grandchildren. All three love to fish and have caught over 40 fish so far.

Met Wm. J. Ford. He enjoys fishing but said he preferred baseball. Played with the late Mel Ott for many years.

Had a wonderful weekend with my five daughters and two sons. Also my son-in-law Lt. Col. Howard Duff and six children. The boys did fishing and crabbing each day. Caught plenty croakers and a few better salt water fish. They are all going to Italy for three years. I spent the past

THANKS

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the voters of Beat 2, for the tremendous vote cast for me in the First Primary. I would like to also thank all the people who worked untiringly for me throughout the campaign. Unofficially I was in the Second Primary with the incumbent, but he did not see fit to meet me again, he demanded a recount. The incumbent was declared a winner by the Democratic Committee. I am still surveying the circumstances and I will advise you of my future Plan of Action.

Arban's veering Wildcats start Sunday

J. C. Arban, the new head coach of the PRC Wildcats, said that the Wildcats will be "basically a veer team with a few variations to fall back on if needed."

Arban, who is preparing for the start of the fall football practice Sunday, said that the team should be well-balanced both offensively and defensively. Arban coached the Wildcats from 1967-72 and then spent two years as an assistant coach at USM before returning to PRC to replace Harvey Seligman as the head football coach. Seligman will remain on as Arban's assistant.

"I think we have good enough athletes to have a fair football team," said Arban. "By me being new with the system and having to depend on some incoming freshmen, I don't know how quickly we can get organized. We have to learn what the kids can do best. And there there is my unfamiliarity with our opponents and their systems."

Two of Arban's promising freshmen are Mike Magee and Anthony Summers, both of Bay High. Arban plans to use Magee at quarterback and Summers at running back.

"I think a good attitude and a desire to win was instilled in our sophomores during spring training," said the head coach. "We have good leadership in our returnees, and that should help our freshmen get started on the right foot."

Sam Piazza and Ed Porter, both offensive linemen from Bay High, were pointed out as strong points on the Wildcat offense.

When asked about the Wildcats' chances this season in the Mississippi Junior College Conference, Arban said, "I feel that Jones (3-5) is going to be hard to beat. Gulf Coast (5-5) will come back strong, they're not used to losing. Our first opponent, East Central (last year's doormat with a 3-7 record) has 33 returnees. And there's Ittawamba and East Mississippi (both compiled 8-2 records last year). We have our work ahead of us," he said.

Defensively, Arban plans to use basically a split and Oklahoma defense "with adjustments."

Arban said he expects about 70 players to be ready at the first squad meeting Sunday at 3 p.m. "We'll be getting in shape that first week," Arban said, "but we'll also be teaching our new system and finding our what each player can do and what position he can fill best."

Actual football practice will begin Monday at 9:30 a.m., and the team will run through two-a-day workouts for the first week only, because of registration and classes being the following week.

The PRC football schedule is as follows:

Sep 6 - East Central (Home)
Sep 13 - Open
Sep 20 - Delta (Away)
Sep 27 - Jones (Home)
Oct 4 - Co-Lin (Away)
Oct 11 - Gulf Coast (Home)
Oct 18 - Holmes (HCing)
Oct 25 - Northeast (Away)
Oct 30 - Southwest (Away)
Nov 8 - Hinds (Away)

TO THE VOTERS OF HANCOCK COUNTY

We want to take this opportunity to thank each and every one of you who supported me in my bid for re-election as Circuit Clerk of Hancock County in the August 5th Democratic Primary, giving me such an overwhelming vote.

We also want to thank those of you who worked on the boxes during the election, and appreciate your performing your civic duty with the long hours of an almost thankless job that you had.

We also want to thank the members of the County Democratic Committee, as well as the others who helped out so much during the long hours of Election night at the Courthouse, tallying the returns as they came in from the precincts.

We would also like to thank my opponent for the way he ran his race - with no personalities - on such a high plane, which was as it should have been.

To those of you who supported me, I again say "THANKS A LOT!" To those who did not, thanks for exercising your democratic prerogative to vote for the man of your choice. To all of you, I pledge that we will continue to operate the office of the Circuit Clerk with integrity, courtesy, and efficiency.

A lot of sharks have been caught lately. They are mostly sand sharks and are not dangerous. The best thing to do if you hook one is to cut the line and let it go. You can save a lot of trouble this way.

Don't worry to much about stingarees. They are harmless unless stepped on. While walking in the water, drag your feet.

Most people mistake a drum for a sheepshead. Sheepshead have teeth and drum don't. Drum and Sheepshead are good eating when not too large.

An additional 467 members will provide us with the minimal number of members required to maintain our current quality service in this day of inflation.

Mobile Medic has served Hancock County with the very best equipment available, and highly trained medical personnel to give on-the-spot emergency medical care. We do not intend to provide an inferior ambulance service.

Currently we have enrolled less members than we had last year. Inflation has reached a point at which Mobile Medic must exceed last year's enrollment to maintain its high standards at no additional cost to the public.

Door slams in Joe Graham's face, 4-2

For the second straight year, the door slammed in the face of Coach Irvin Favre's Joe Graham Post 139 American Legion baseball team just as they were about to step into the regional tournament. And once again, the door-slammers were the Jackson Bombers.

For the record, this time it was 4-2.

The Gulfport-based team recorded an even 2-2 slate for the double elimination state tournament they hosted at the Fair Grounds in Gulfport.

After losing the first-round game to Tupelo 6-5, the Gulfport team battled back through the losers' bracket with wins Saturday and Sunday to reach the finals of the losers' bracket.

Behind the shutout pitching of Glen Dewease, the Gulfport team eliminated Pontotoc 3-0 Saturday. Then on Sunday Favre's team dumped district rival Hattiesburg 7-1.

But the comeback trail turned to a dead end Monday when the Jackson Bombers did a come-from-behind act of their own to win 4-2 and nail down a slot in the regional tournament.

With its win, Jackson earned the right to meet unbeaten Greenville in the tournament finals. The Greenville nine handed Jackson their only loss of the tournament, a 20-5 thrashing.

Local players included on the team are Mike Favre of Bay St. Louis, Billy Matkin of Pass Christian, and Tommy McKay of Long Beach.

Keeping the cost of telephone service by improving the efficiency of our operations is important to all of us at South Central Bell. The successful development of a new type handset, tested by Bell Laboratories in Wayne County, Mississippi, represents an innovative approach to serving high-cost rural areas.

This new instrument, called the G36 handset, is designed especially to help us provide better telephone service more economically to people living in remote areas of our state — as far as 35 miles from our telephone switching offices. In conjunction with a special device in the central office, the new handset maintains service quality while eliminating special equipment on telephone poles which reduces maintenance and operating expense.

The G36 handset looks just like the ordinary telephone customers talk on but it's slightly heavier. This is because the space inside the handle, nearly empty in most telephones, has been used to contain solid state amplifiers that boost the volume of both incoming and outgoing telephone conversations.

Rodeos are always fun for everyone and the second annual Mississippi Junior Rodeo Association (MJRA) State Finals Rodeo promises to be one of the most entertaining ever. Sponsored by the Exchange Club of Jackson, the rodeo features over 300 young people, ages 6 to 19, competing for titles . . . plus clowns, trick horse riding, music, and horse drill teams.

The rodeo will be held in the Mississippi Coliseum August 17, 1975, at 1:30 P.M. Proceeds from ticket sales and program advertising will be used to further the Exchange Club's support of youth organizations and provide for further growth of the MJRA.

Here are some tips to help you avoid dialing the wrong number:

- If you're not sure about the number, look in the telephone directory.
- Use a straight edge — like the top of a sheet of paper — to read the correct line in the phone book.
- Underline or circle numbers in your directory. Even better, list frequently called numbers [illegible] office for a "Quick List."
- [illegible] your time dialing and let the dial wheel return [illegible]. Or if you have Touch-Tone(R) service, use one [illegible] push each button firmly.

CATCHING 'HOPPER BAIT

Time was when a fisherman could hire a couple of fleet-footed kids to spend a summer afternoon catching grasshoppers for him at the rate of a penny for each one delivered in a glass jar. Not any more. The price has gone up . . . and the lowly grasshopper is in great demand as fishing bait.

[illegible] once sought to [illegible] by [illegible] a mobile 'hopper catcher. It was a [illegible] scoop that fitted across the front of a car or truck. TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

This is to advise that the road which runs from U. S. Highway Number 51 at Martinsville, Copiah County, Mississippi westerly across Interstate 55 and by the residence of Mr. W. H. (Shag) Pyron, our present highway commissioner, is a county raod known as the Martinsvile Road and this road was reconstructed and paved under State Aide Project 15(7) for the sum of $48,860.29.

This work was done by the company known as Road Builders Construction Company. The work started on April 27, 1958 and was accepted as completed by the Board of Supervisors of Copiah County, Mississippi on December 16, 1958. Mr. Nemo Clarke, professional engineer of Laurel, Mississippi was the county state aide engineer in charge of the project. This road project was completed long before Mr. Pyron became the highway commissioner for the Southern District of Mississippi and was in no way connected with said project other than being a property owner thereto and giving the county the necessary right of way relative to the said project.

Read this

Subsequent to the construction of the above mentioned project the Highway Department, during the administration of Mr. John Smith, the former highway commissioner of the Southern District, Interstate 55 was constructed but a bridge was constructed across said Interstate highway so that said road would not be made a dead end by said Interstate project. This was done with the authority of the Board of Supervisors of Copiah County, Mississippi at the time and Mr. Pyron had nothing whatsoever to do in connection therewith.

On August 26, 1963, this affiant and her late husband, W. L. This affiant and her late husband, W. L. Wilson, would not have sold and conveyed said property to the Highway Commission unless they had received this assurance.

You know, Americans can understand the mistakes even of their most respected religious, political and civic leaders. But, they simply do not like falsehood, mis-direction and half truths fostered by anyone!

And Americans, feel more strongly now than ever before, that politicians and candidates for political office should strive for honesty.

As a purely political job, complete with all of the classical elements of dirty politics, inaccuracy and incomplete facts, the remarks of Shag Pyron's opponent about the Martinsville interchange don't merit a reply.

But, in an attempt to halt the spread of inaccuracy and incomplete facts, it's time to set the record straight about the Martinsville interchange.

In 1963, before Shag Pyron was a member of the highway team, his predecessor, John Smith made the decision to put in the interchange because of his concern for the safety of Copiah Lincoln Junior College students and citizens in the area. It is admitted that if Shag Pyron had been in on the decision it probably would not have been changed anyway. He, too, shares concern not only for students but for all citizens.

The members of your Highway Department including Shag Pyron are busy. It was hoped that it would not be necessary for anyone, least of all Shag Pyron, to take time off to set the record straight on this issue, to protect the good name of John Smith and hundreds of other fine Highway Department personnel who were in on this decision which Shag Pyron's opponent seems to find so objectionable.

DOCUMENTAL PROOF IS PRESENTED HERE:

Maybe, the matter should be dropped here. But then, Shag Pyron would still not have completely discharged his stewardship to you, the taxpayer.

Shag Pyron has no options but to fulfill his responsibility to present facts.

There are hundreds of millions more in dollars in contracts to be let and the safety of one student and the highway needs of the citizens of our states is worth more than money.

If Martinsville was a mistake, it was an honest one made by hundreds of dedicated state highway specialists, Shag Pyron's predecessor, John Smith and some fine citizens in Copiah, Lincoln, Pike and Lawrence Counties to whom the highway department promised this interchange.

If, Shag Pyron's opponent, the research department of his high priced advertising agency, or the out-of-state would-be-Mississippi rulers who actively participated in the opponent's campaign had simply asked, they would have found out Shag Pyron was not a member of the highway department team when the Martinsville interchange decision was made.

If, his opponent, the proofreading department of his ad agency or his out-of-state campaign participants had simply read the ads they produced they would have seen evidence of their own inability to handle facts.

In one ad, they give Shag Pyron credit for "a private highway interchange" overlooking the fact he was not on the highway department team when the interchange decision was finalized.

The interchange was the result of a clause in the deed involved in sale of the property and was for the safety of students at Copiah-Lincoln Junior College and the many residents in the area.

Yet in another ad within a few days, they stated "almost all of these roads were planned, designed or constructed before he took office almost eight years ago."

Sounds as if one hand doesn't know what the other is doing?

The real tragedy for the taxpayer-highway user is that none of the informers of Shag Pyron's opponent know anything about highways, how they are planned, engineered or built. Nor, do they know about the man, material, time that it takes to build them. Obviously, Shag Pyron could not both be responsible for and not responsible for the same thing. Honestly.

Also obvious is that highways and highway tax dollars are far too important to be delegated to leadership without qualifications, with such obvious lack of ability to obtain correct information or to make accurate decisions.

Just as tragic is the thought of more than [illegible] fine Highway Department employees and their families being subject not only to lack of leadership with proven qualifications and ability but with a proven inability to work with other personnel or to handle his own personal funds.

Tragic, is the fact that neither Shag Pyron nor his opponent are actually opponents in this campaign.

On one side, among others, is a large out-of-state engineering firm, who cannot own Shag Pyron's [illegible] efficient organization. On the other side are Mississippi citizens who pay taxes to ride on one of the best highway systems in the nation.

Equally tragic is that a Mississippi advertising agency would stoop to "dirty tricks," taking money from these selfish interest groups to insult the [illegible] Mississippi citizens building [illegible] even in the face of having facts available.

One side must lose.

JIMMY SINGLETON
Born Feb. 6, 1967
Died Aug. 14, 1974

You're gone our darling middle son,
We'll never forget you dear
Your twinkling eyes, your sunny smile
You brought love to everyone near.

Your sun streaked hair you loved so much,
Must surely shine brite in God's place
One year has passed, since you have gone
But your memory will never erase
We'll join you one day, our precious son
Never again will we part
So until we meet again our dear,
You'll always be in our heart.

Local boy says shark eats from his hand

A ninth grade Coast Episcopal High School student recently had the novel experience of having a 15-foot Tiger shark eat from his hand while spearfishing last week in St. Thomas, Virgin Islands.

Charles Balch, 14, son of Mrs. Rita Breath Balch of Gulfport and Dr. John Balch of the Virgin Islands, was visiting in St. Thomas and enjoying a spearfishing expedition with his father when the incident occured. He said the shark nudged him and stole a fish from his hand while he was approximately 1,000 yards from shore.

Neither the boy nor his father were injured in the incident but reported that the shark made several lunges at them before they reached the shore safely.

Balch is the grandson of Charles and Mary Breath of Bay St. Louis.
